'Temporary' Housing in DC

First for Navy – Now Low Income Families

Thirty years ago the United States Navy Department ordered 436 "war housing" units built on a 28-acre parcel of land near the famed Cow Palace in Daly City.

It was to be temporary housing for naval personnel and their families. Certain civilian workers at the Hunters Point Naval Shipyard were also assigned quarters there.

The war ended more than 26 years ago but the "temporary" units are still there, right in the midst of urban sprawl that has overflowed San Francisco and is now creeping into the Bayshore District of Daly City.

There is a large turfed open space in the center of the village, barren of trees and scheduled recreational activities. Aside from baseball there is little else the open space can be used for.

In recent years the value of the property has skyrocketed.

The Navy long since turned over the Village to the San Mateo County Housing Authority for supervision, but there remain units designated for Navy men and their families.

Other units are used for low income families.

Generally, the Village is fast deteriorating and upkeep costs have increased with time.

Last year it was decided in official circles that the barracks-type housing huddled at the foot of San Bruno Mountain must be replaced by a more modern complex.

It was further decided that a rehabilitation program would be carried out in phases, perhaps starting as early as this summer.

First phase would probably be built on the playing field and consist of some 150 units—100 for low income senior citizens and the remainder for Navy personnel.

Over the next couple of years construction, relocation and demolition of the old structures will be systematically carried out.

In all, 400 units are expected to be built and funded by the Housing and Urban Development department of the federal government (HUD).

Daly City will provide all support services such as police, fire and recreational programs on the rebuilt recreation field.

The application for funding has already been made to HUD, it was learned, and groundwork necessary for implementation of the rehabilitation of the decades-old housing area is underway.

In an agreement signed in recent weeks, the Housing Authority has agreed to make in-lieu tax payments to Daly City either in the amount of ten per cent of actual total rents collected or an amount permitted by state law. These tax payments will be less the cost of utilities for the Village.

Utilities presently are provided by the Dimond Utility District.

Currently a contract is in force with the U.S. Navy to provide housing for their personnel at the Village. An official of the Housing Authority said this could change in the future and the Village used solely for the benefit of the general public as low income housing.

A long-term lease has also been signed between the Housing Authority (which owns some 13 acres of land in the Village) the Bayshore School District and Pacific Gas & Electric which own the rest.

S.S.F. Council Issue

Pair to Nix 'Blanket' Expense Allowances

South San Francisco Councilmen Frank Mammini and Warren Steinkamp have stated they will no longer accept blanket expense allowances.

In a letter to City Clerk Arthur Rodondi, the pair said they also "stand ready and willing to restore to the city any improper and excessive such receipts."

The position taken by the two councilmen follows a recent majority vote by Councilmen Frank Bertucelli, Patrick Ahern and William Borba for an automatic $40 monthly "automobile allowance." Previously councilmen had automatically received $50 expense money with the mayor getting $75 a month.

These three councilmen voted for the flat $40 at the insistence of City Attorney John Noonan, who urged them not to approve of a motion by Steinkamp that would have made all expenses of the council payable only by voucher.

The vote to accept the $40 was 3-1, with Steinkamp voting against it. Mammini had left that meeting early due to illness.

But the letter to Rodondi was signed by both Mammini and Steinkamp. It said the pair had sought "a review by our private attorney."

They said the $50 (and $75 for mayor) allowance was being paid when they were elected to the council almost four years ago "as a matter of course, and therefore we accepted it as being usual, proper and legal.

"The payment of this expense allowance is now being questioned. We want to point out that it is certainly now, and always has been, our intention and desire to receive and accept only that to which we are entitled.

"Accordingly, it is our instruction (to the city clerk) that we will no longer accept, and will refuse to accept, any blanket expense allowance in the future and will accept reimbursement for expenses only by voucher."

'Enough Problems'

Sheriff Spurns S.F. Jail Row

By VIRGIL WILSON

Sheriff Earl B. Whitmore has refused to get involved in the controversy over security at the San Francisco-owned county jail west of San Bruno.

"I have enough county jail problems of my own," Whitmore told reporters, "and I'm certainly not going to get involved in the operation of somebody else's."

At the request of member Robert St. Clair, the County Board of Supervisors earlier voted to ask Whitmore to intercede. St. Clair acknowledged that the San Bruno is the responsibility of San Francisco Sheriff Richard Hongisto but said that he, as a supervisor, feels responsibility for the safety of residents of the area.

St. Clair cited Hongisto's statement that a mass break-out of the 600 inmates at the jail could occur at any time and called the situation "critical." The board also agreed to notify the State Department of Corrections, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors and Mayor Joseph L. Alioto of their concern.

What the board wanted Whitmore to do was not specified other than to talk with Hongisto and perhaps discuss the possibility of using San Mateo County law enforcement officers to strengthen the security force at the San Bruno jail.

"I declined several months ago to get involved," Whitmore said today. "County Manager Marty Tarshes and I told St. Clair that we have our own county jail problems to worry about."

Whitmore said he will not talk to Hongisto about his problems. What if the supervisors ordered him to do so?

"They can't order me," the sheriff replied. "Even if the board was willing to give me some additional manpower for the purpose, I wouldn't be obligated to do it."

As to the possible use of San Mateo County law officers at the jail, Whitmore said Hongisto would have to apply for mutual aid to Alameda County Sheriff Frank Madigan, area mutual aid coordinator.

"If the coordinator authorizes mutual aid," Whitmore said, "that would be another matter. But it would have to go through the chain of command."

Asked about St. Clair's actions, Mayor Alioto suggested that the supervisor "tend to his own knitting.

"Tell my good friend, Robert St. Clair, that there have been more escapes from the San Mateo County jail than our jail in the past two years," Alioto said.

St. Clair Chides Whitmore, Says, 'We Got a Lot of Lip!'

Sheriff Earl B. Whitmore was scolded by Supervisor Robert St. Clair for refusing to get involved in the controversy over security at San Francisco County Jail No. 2 west of San Bruno.

"All we did was ask for his opinion," St. Clair said, "and we got a lot of lip."

The supervisor made a thinly veiled threat to get back at Whitmore during consideration of his 1972-73 budget request.

"If he wants to completely ignore our request for his opinion as a law enforcement expert on the San Bruno jail situation," St. Clair said, "then I believe I want to take a look at the total sheriff's budget as far as what's going on in his department."

St. Clair called a special meeting this morning of a jail study committee of which he is chairman and announced that a resolution was authorized recommending that the North County Council of Cities:

—Request the San Francisco Board of Supervisors and Mayor Joseph L. Alioto to immediately allocate emergency funds to provide better security at the San Bruno facility.

—Ask the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors and Sheriff Whitmore to do everything in their power to insure the safety of residents of the area.

St. Clair said he met in San Bruno this morning with two members of his committee, Mayor James O'Connor of Millbrae and Vice Mayor George Corey of San Bruno.

"I called the meeting," the supervisor explained "because all of the North County cities are alarmed about Hongisto's (San Francisco Sheriff Richard Hongisto) statement that a mass break-out of prisoners could occur at any time. There is a great hazard to the safety of the citizens of the area."

Tuesday the San Mateo County board asked Whitmore, because he is responsible for the safety of residents surrounding the San Francisco-owned jail, to meet with Hongisto and see what could or should be done. Whitmore told reporters that he had already told St. Clair twice that he would not get involved and added that he had enough jail security problems of his own to worry about.

"We always recognized that we have problems with our own jail facility," St. Clair responded today. "But the difference between us and San Francisco is that we are willing to do something about it. We have (Please See Page 2, Column 1)

New Coast Vote On Architect Due

By BOB PETERSON

Pacifica council candidate Virginia Jaeger challenged a city council vote last week on the hiring of an architect for Frontierland drawings and apparently won her point.

At least city hall officials have decided to put the matter back on the next agenda for a new vote.

Mrs. Jaeger's concern was that the matter of hiring architect Jack W. Buktenica, with a fee not to exceed $18,400, was improper in that it was approved without a majority council vote, as is required of all monetary appropriation matters.

The hiring was approved 2-1, with Mayor Grace McCarthy and Councilman Dan Modena favoring the hiring. Voting against it was Councilman Stan Farber. Both Councilmen Harland Minschew (ill) and Nick Gust (at a labor meeting) were absent.

Mrs. Jaeger questioned the hiring, period. She claims the city has qualified people to do the work. She was told that although that may be the case city personnel are already loaded with plenty of work, and an outside architect was already decided upon.

As to the question of the approval on a 2-1 vote, City Manager James Swayne said, "I really think it is alright." He said the money was appropriated for the hiring on a majority vote when the budget was adopted.

City Attorney John Sherman said he would rather put it back on the agenda and have it approved with a three-vote majority that to have to wrestle with the matter at a later date. "It would be best both for the city and the architect," said Sherman.

Pounding a Beat 35 Years Ago in D.C.

By FRANK LA PIERRE

"Downtown Daly City" was split between Mission Street and Junipero Serra Boulevard 35 years ago when George Hopman pounded a beat with five other officers that made up the entire city police department.

"We had crime, but not a heckuva lot of it," Hopman recalls.

And there really wasn't a "heckuva lot" of anything else in the city back in 1937, the longtime Public Works Department inspector said.

The occasion for Hopman's reminiscing was the annual Daly City Employes' Awards Night held at the War Memorial building last week.

Cabbage patches, truck farms and hog ranches made up the "Westlake" of that era.

Up in Hopman's neighborhood, 64 Eastlake Avenue, life was less hectic than it is today. He has lived there since 1929.

Hopman's name is synonymous with Westlake.

Many homes dating back 20 and more years still have Hopman's signature attesting to the fact that it had passed the final inspection.

For some 12 years Hopman was a policeman, sometines riding in the city's line patrol car but most often walking his beat.

In the last seven years of his police "career" (he left in Dec., 1948) a young rookie officer named Roland Petrocchi joined the force.

Today, Petrocchi is chief of police and looks back on 30 years of service.

Hopman now wears a 10K gold medallion with gold wreath, sapphire stone and three diamonds denoting 35 years of service.

In 1948 Hopman transferred into the city's Public Works Department. Things were quiet for a few months—until builder Henry Doelger began building.

"After that, it was a boomtown. We had plenty to do," Hopman said.

On May 31 of this year Hopman will retire.

George Hopman . . . looks back at Daly City

Chief Petrocchi has no plans to retire although he and David A. Cafferata (Public Works Department) now have 30 years of city service behind them.

Petrocchi, who claims he has never had to use his gun in those three decades of law enforcement work, likes what he is doing and says he will stay on "for awhile."

During the ceremonies, six persons were awarded 20-year pins: Wayne R. Alexander, George C. De Bono, Melvin G. Hanson, Frank M. Specht, Natalino H. Gaggero and Henry (Hank) Weisner.

Silver medallions with a sapphire stone for 15 years of service were awarded:

Marian F. Benedetti, Robert G. Evans, Shelby Ross, Ronald A. Angelot, Manuel R. Carmona, Charles E. Christian, Lyle S. Church.

Velma B. Yule, Josephine R. Runce, Richard C. Sims, Ralph T. Warren, Luis T. Ramirez, Alois Schiessl, Harold E. Turner and Michael J. Sims.

Employes honored with ten years service were:

Thomas Eichner, Maurice J. Sciaroni, Servart Ojakian, Neil B. Hammerman, John J. Kolbmann, Henry G. Black.

Russell R. Brabeck, William Gfroerer, Frances V. Giese, Guido Lucchesi and John Vallerga.

given the sheriff everything he has asked for and if there is something else that needs to be done, I want him to come before us and tell us about it."

In another area development, Marin County Superior Judge Joseph G. Wilson made Alioto a defendant in an "abatement of nuisance" suit filed against the San Bruno jail last year by San Mateo County.

Th suit asks that a long series of specified steps be taken to provide better security at the jail, or that the facility be closed down.

Original defendants were the San Francisco Board of Supervisors and the sheriff at that time, Matthew Carberry. Since then the name of the new sheriff, Richard Hongisto, who was elected over Carberry last November, has been substituted. The suit was transferred to Marin County to be tried in a "neutral" county.

Promotion To PG&E's Joe Isnor

Joe Isnor, a Pacific Gas and Electric Company veteran employee with 35 years' service, has been promoted to manager of company operations in Pacifica.

He will be headquartered in a new PG&E office in the Eureka Square Shopping Center, according to Al Vial, the company's Northen San Mateo County district manager. PGE leased the office space last week.

"The opening of the Pacifica office about April 1 will enable the company to provide better service to our customers in this growing area," said Vial. "Mr. Isnor's previous experience as district representative qualified him as a man who will continue to work for the highest quality of gas and electric service to local residents. He has been active in civic affairs during the 17 years he has lived in Pacifica and is well known locally."

Isnor joined PG&E in 1937 as a meter reader. He rose to supervisory positions in Daly City and Colma before his promotion to district representative in 1958.

His community interests include membership in the Pacifica Chamber of Commerce and the Lions Club. Isnor resides with his wife Lois at 823 Edgemar Avenue, Pacifica. They have one son and a granddaughter.

The Airport Controversy

S.M. Supervisors Move to Gain Better Cab Service

San Mateo County supervisors moved Tuesday to put pressure on San Francisco to provide better taxi service from International Airport to Peninsula communities.

They asked San Francisco supervisors and Mayor Joseph L. Alioto to meet with them on the subject and requested that no action be taken in the meantime on proposed state legislation that would make it a misdemeanor for unauthorized cabs to do business at the airport.

The groundwork for the action was laid at a lunch meeting with members of the North County Council of Cities at which it was agreed that the Council will attack the problem on another front; request the Airport Commission to hold public hearings on alleged taxi service "abuses" at the airport. Council representatives were City Councilman Anthony Governale of San Bruno, chairman of the group's subcommittee on airport and taxi problems, and Mayor William Glang of Millbrae, a subcommittee member.

Last month District Attorney Keith C. Sorenson, at the request of airport officials, recommended to the San Mateo County board that it sponsor legislation making it a misdemeanor for anyone to do business at the airport without specific permission of the owners. Learning of the proposal, the North County Council asked for the meeting with the supervisors.

Yellow Cab Company of San Francisco has an exclusive franchise to take fares from the airport, for the privilege of which it pays 4.5 cents for each landing passenger, or about $300,000 a year. The contract has three years to run.

Governale said he has documented proof that franchised drivers have illegally refused to take passengers on short hauls to nearby San Mateo County cities, prefering to wait for a more lucrative trip to San Francisco.

The Council, Governale told the board, wants Yellow Cab to either provide Peninsula service, including special cab stations for that purpose, or to subcontract with San Mateo County taxiu companies to provide the service.

Sorenson said airport authorities have offered to give a written guarantee that local service will be provided if the legislation is passed to keep unauthorized cabs out. The conferees agreed, however, that it should be the other way around — that San Francisco should expect support for the legislation only if it first sees to it that adequate service is provided.

The district attorney explained the legislation is necessary because existing law requires proof that a driver entered upon the airport property with the intent to solicit unauthorized fares.

County Manager M. D. Tarshes expressed doubt that the legislation, which San Francisco officials have said they will sponsor if San Mateo County does not, could be passed without San Mateo County support.

Governale proposed that the Airport Commission hold public hearings at which persons who have been refused Yellow Cab service would be called to testify. He said public opinion might force San Francisco to act.

Governale suggested that the county consider sponsoring legisation that would require San Francisco to provide Peninsula service. Sorenson said such a bill would have "tough sledding" but that it would not hurt to try.

Two Brunans Hurt; CHP Car Crushed

Two San Brunans escaped serious injury on Bayshore Freeway near Mountain View and a California Highway Patrol car en route to the accident scene was crushed by a train at Redwood City early Thursday.

Two CHP officers watched helplessly as their black and white patrol car, trapped between two crossing gates at the Whipple Avenue railroad crossing in Redwood City, was struck by a southbound train, knocked 175 feet and crushed.

Another unit responded to the accident, in which Martin Lee Lockwood, 22, of 2390 Toyon Way, and Vincent J. Giardina, 22, of 1661 Claremont Drive, both San Bruno, suffered minor injuries.

The two San Brunans were passengers in an auto driven by John Broderick, 41 of San Mateo.

All were treated at Stanford Medical Center.

Gun at Head of Woman

South San Francisco police are investigating the circumstances surrounding an incident on Monday in which a resident apparently went berserk and held a gun to a neighbor's head, police report.

Police arrested Jack Allen Nieve, 23, of 620 Grand Ave., at 3:30 p.m. after being called to a neighbor's residence.

According to police, Nieve had been involved in an apparent disturbance at his home. Police said he attempted to take a vehicle at gunpoint. When that was unsuccessful he knocked on a neighbor's door.

Police said he grabbed the woman neighbor who answered the door and held a gun to her head, demanding that she call the police.

When the police arrived, Nieve gave up without a struggle. He was booked for assault with a deadly weapon and brandishing (the weapon) in a threatening manner, police said.

Man's 'Best Friend' Again Proves Point

Man's best friend once again proved his point recently when an electric blanket caught fire at the Daly City home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl A. Jacobs, threatening the life of the couple's young son, Sergey Orlich.

Sergey was asleep when the bedding caught fire from his electric blanket shortly after 3:30 a.m. last week.

Goliath, the family pet and current hero, awoke the boy by nudging him and licking his face.

Awakening, Sergey rushed to the bathroom and quickly extinguished the burning material with a wet towel.

The entire episode was ably supervised by Goliath, who, according to Mrs. Jacobs, has had no formal firefighting training.

Without awakening his parents, Sergey took his sleeping bag out of a closet and "camped out" in the living room for the rest of the night.

Goliath, apparently tired from his ordeal, was found sleeping at the boy's feet the next morning.

Daly City School Frustration Noted

By FRANK LA PIERRE

Increased frustration has been creeping into the compensatory education program at Daly City's Woodrow Wilson school over the past five years.

This week it surfaced when a spokesman for the Jefferson Elementary School District Advisory Committee, Elijah Brewster, Jr., charged that his group's recommendations concerning the SCOPE program had been falling on deaf ears.

Not only was Brewster disenchanted with the way the program was being handled in the district, he indicated accounting of monies received under Title One Federal Funds for the program ($159,000 in 1971-72) were not being made available to his council.

Brewster is the non-salaried chairman of the Advisory Committee whose membership is composed of 51 percent parents that have children in the special program and 49 percent made up of "other persons."

There are now 180 children in grades "pre-school" through third grade attending classes at Woodrow Wilson. Another 40 children are registered at Our Lady of Perpetual Help.

The flap is over the advisory council's willingness to advise but the administration's alleged failure to listen.

In a nine point letter to State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. Wilson Riles, on Jan. 21, 1972, Brewster said:

"We do not have a clear idea of who is responsible for what with our Title I program. We believe that the program could be improved with the appointment of one full time Title I director who could work closely with the district Advisory Committee."

Lowell Jennings is currently the "parttime" project I director for the school's Title I program which the SCOPE program falls under.

Jennings' salary is partially paid by Title I funds (some $5,000). He budgets his time between this program and others in the Jefferson district.

But the arrangement is unsatisfactory Brewster charged.

For one thing Compensatory Education Reading teachers do not coordinate their activities with regular classroom teachers, according to Brewster.

"On July 29, 1971, we complained in a meeting between Hal Andrews and Ron Temple and our local administrators, that our teacher aides are not assigned to work with the Compensatory Education Teachers," Brewster explained.

After more than six months, and after Brewster's group had been told the matter would be corrected "no action has been taken," he told Riles.

Requests for invoices and financial statements on expenditures of Title I funds have been ignored, he said.

And there is no clear identification of Title I equipment in schools.

All project equipment is labeled exactly the same as other school property, it was noted.

Jennings replied to each of the points made by Brewster during a recent board of trustees' meeting.

On the complaint that there is a lack of communication between teachers and the compensatory program aides, Jennings said: "To say no coordination exists is not true.

He defended the present procedure and said there is coordination and communications between both teacher groups.

Jennings said Title I equipment has a decal (it is the same as all the other property, however) and a person can determine its status by going through the property card file.

And the project director disputed Brewster's allegation that no accounting of funds is made to the council.

"There has been a monthly, at least, budget reporting. The form distributed to the council is such that we have felt they had a 'good idea' of how the money was being spent," Jennings countered.

Much of the situation between Brewster's group and the current administration of the program had not been brought to the Trustees' attention before, according to Mrs. Beverly Forrester.

Service for Shut-ins

A new service known as "Tele-Care" is now in effect at Mary's Help Hospital in Daly City.

Staffed by volunteers under the direction of Mrs. Mary McCoy, the new department is designed especially for people who live alone, such as widows, widowers, senior citizens, shut-ins and anyone whose mobility is curtailed and whose outside contacts are limited.

Through "Tele-Care," such individuals will receive a phone call each day, every day, from one of the Mary's Help Hospital volunteers.

If there is no answer between 9 a.m. and noon (the hours such calls will be made) the volunteer will immediately notify someone close to the Tele-Care member — a neighbor, friend or relative — who will check in person to insure nothing is wrong.

Although the volunteer's only contact with the member will be by telephone, she will be assuring the member that a friendly and reliable means of ascertaining whether or not everything is all right is only as far away as the telephone.

The Tele-Care service, functioning under the directorship of Mrs. William Lindsay, project chairman, will be free of charge and will be bi-lingual. It will serve those individuals within the confines of the hospital community, including San Francisco, Daly City, Colma, San Bruno, Brisbane, South San Francisco, Millbrae and Half Moon Bay, a spokesman said.

Interested persons are asked to call the Volunteer Office at Mary's Help Hospital (992-4000

Bandits Net $3,000

A 40-year-old San Bruno longshoreman was robbed of $3,000 worth of cash and traveler's checks and his coat by two men who threatened to take his life and that of his 6-year-old daughter as he drove from the San Francisco International airport Thursday.

Nicholas Kuzma of 528 Second Avenue reported to Deputy Larry J. Hefner he was returning home after buying $2,700 worth of traveler's checks and two rond-trip tickets to Mexico City when another car pulled alongside and the driver yelled he had left his luggage in the rear of Kuzma's pickup truck.

Kuzma said he had left the pickup truck parked in front of the terminal as he went to the Western Airline counter to purchase the tickets.

He said he looked back and noticed a red suitcase and a brown paper bag in the bed of the truck.

When he pulled to the side of the frontage road, Kuzma said a small car pulled in front of him and two men got out. One, he reported, ordered him to take off his grey wool coat as the robber displayed a revolver.

"You do anything and you're dead and your daughter's dead, too," the gunmen warned.

After taking his coat, $2,700 worth of traveler's checks and $281 in cash, the men left. Kuzma said that working acquaintances had given him money to buy leather goods in Mexico.

Hefner and Reserve Deputy William Barrett, who were called to Kuzma's San Bruno home, said the suitcase, made in the Philippines, and the bag were still in the truck. In the suitcase were assorted Oriental articles of clothing. In the bag were eight candy bars, one with Oriental writing on it; seven oranges, bathroom towels, a magazine and a paperback book.

Hefner ordered the bank to put a stop on payment of the checks.

'Hammer' Smashes Meters

A neatly dressed builder from Pacifica whom San Francisco city employes have dubbed "The Mad Hammer" systematically smashed 28 parking meters in front of San Francisco City Hall Friday before he was arrested.

If front of a crowd of surprised onlookers, the hammer-wielding man broke every meter on Polk Street between McAllister and Grove Streets.

Police said he was putting the hammer back into his car in front of the opera house when they arrived and took him into custody on suspicion of malicious mischief and tampering with a parking meter.

The man was identified as Rudolf Peter Loehrer, who was quoted as saying that parking meters are illegal and a public obstruction.

Burton H. Dougherty, an ofvficial with the city Department of Electricity, said yesterday that Loehrer would be billed for the damage, which could be up to $60 per meter.

County Education Board Backs Construction Bonds

Proposition Two on the June 6 primary ballot to provide financial aid for construction of earthquake safe schools and assistance to impoverished school districts was endorsed last night in a resolution adopted by the San Mateo County Board of Education.

The ballot proposal calls for approval of sale of $350 million in state school bonds, with $250 million to be used to help 271 school districts in 54 counties build earthquake-safe schools for one million youngsters.

The other $100 million would be used to continue the state school building aid program in rapid growth, impoverished districts which have exhausted their bond debt capacity.

Copies of the resolution are being sent by the board to every school district in the county.

The board also adopted a second resolution "strongly supporting the achievement of ethnic balance in the public schools of California" and opposing proposed legislation by Assemblyman Floyd L. Wakefield, of Downey, which would repeal Assembly Bill 724 establishing integrated attendance districts for public schools.

The resolution notes that AB 724 strengthens the policy and procedures established by the State Board of Education to achieve ethnic balance.

Its support of the efforts of county schools superintendent in continuing to be of service to school districts in the county in the "formidable task of accomplishing desegregation" also was reaffirmed by the county board.

Homosexuals Ask HRC Support

A plea for gay freedom in San Mateo County was made Thursday to the County Human Relations Commission.

Richard Gayer of San Francisco, representing the Society for Individual Rights (SIR), the largest homosexual organization in the United States, asked the commission to recommend to the County Board of Supervisors that its purview be broadened to include discrimination on the basis of "sexual orientation."

The commission is presently empowered to investigate discrimination in housing, employment and education on the basis of race, color, creed, ethnic grouping, sex, and age.

Gayer, who cited himself as an example, said discrimination against gay persons is prevalent among employers.

He said SIR has a membership of about 1,200, approximately two-thirds of whom reside in the Bay Area. He estimated that the population of San Francisco is about 10 per cent gay with the percentage "something less in San Mateo County."

"Your ordinance doesn't cover gay people," Gayer told the commission, "and gay people do constitute a significant minority."

A majority of the commission was reluctant to act on the request Thursday in the absence of additional information. It was agreed to continue the matter to the next meeting, March 16, and ask the staff in the meantime to make an investigation and talk to some San Mateo County homosexuals, in confidence if necessary to protect their jobs. Deputy District Attorney L.M Summey, the commission's legal advisor, was asked to be present at the March meeting to deal with the legal ramifications of the request.

Gayer said no public jurisdiction in the Bay Area has adopted such an ordinance amendment, although the Human Rights Commission in San Francisco has recommended such action to the Board of Supervisors there. The San Francisco board is expected to act on the recommendation this month or next, according to Gayer.

Gayer told the commission that a survey conducted by the American Civil Liberties union in San Francisco in 1970 showed that 16 per cent of employers admitted discrimination against homosexuals. He submitted copies of a letter from D. F. McLaughlin, assistant vice president of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, stating that the company "does not knowlingly hire or retain in our employment persons—and this could include homosexuals—whose reputation, performance or behavior would impose a risk to our customers, other employes, or to the reputation of the company."

If the commission were to go on record condemning discrimination against gays, Gayer said, "this would no doubt have a profound effect on Pacific Telephone."

Gayer called the federal government an "arch-discriminator" and cited his own experience as an example. He said he had worked for Sylvania Company for 10 years as an electrical engineer, with security clearance, until the government discovered his membership in SIR. He was fired but the ACLU took his case to court and won his reinstatement. He was unable to regain his security clearance, however, he said, and eventually was forced to leave and take another job at lower pay. He said he is presently working in San Francisco as an electrical engineer under his real name, Richard Gayer.

Two members of the commission, Mrs. Phyllis Blum and Robert Jacobs, indicated they were ready to vote to ask the supervisors to amend the ordinance. Others urged caution, however.

"Mr. Gayer is from San Francisco," Frank Spadarella observed. "Unless I know that this is a pressing problem in San Mateo County, how can I act on this? Are any citizens in this county affected by this. If so, why don't they come forward and say so?"

Gayer said it is difficult to get most homosexuals to testify in public beacuse of fear that they will lose their jobs. It was then agreed to ask the staff to attemp to make a private investigation prior to the March meeting.

S.M. Trustee Enters Race For Assembly

Dr. John H. Linn of Millbrae, vice president of the Board of Trustees of the San Mateo High School District and a professor of business at San Francisco State College, announced his candidacy for the State Assembly.

Linn is the fourth Democrat to enter the race in the Twenty-seventh Assembly District, where the incumbent, Leo J. Ryan, is giving up his seat to run for Congress in the Eleventh District.

The candidate said his campaign will deal with "fundamental issues."

Another candidate to announces today is James W. Stewart, a 34-year-old Palo Alto attorney, who will seek the Democratic nomination in the Seventeenth Congressional District.

"If we continue to be obsessed with military spending," Stewart told campaign workers in Palo Alto, "we will be unable to meet the nation's real needs in housing, transportation, pollution control and health care. We must . . . spend more for peace than we do for war."

John Donelson III, a Palo Alto Democrat and Lockheed Reasearch Assistant yesterday declared his candidacy for Congress in the new 17th District. For the past two years, Donelson has been the president of the Palo Alto-Stanford Democratic Association, a Democratic volunteer organization with over 300 paid members in the Palo Alto area.

Parents Work to Keep School Open

With the teaching nuns who run St. Dunstan's Catholic grammar school in Millbrae, scheduled to leave the school this summer, the prospect had been that the school would have to do what so many other parochial grammar schools have done recently: Close up shop.

But St. Dunstan's is different.

The parents of students still in the school and others interested in education in that community have banded together to keep the school open this coming fall.

According to Bob Tresler, a spokesman for the parents' group, St. Dunstan's will not go the way of those other less fortunate Catholic schools.

At a meeting of concerned individuals this week in Millbrae, it was determined that there was more than enough interest to keep the school open.

Of the 136 families who will have students at the school after the current eighth grade graduates in June, Tresler said the parents' group has commitments from 110 to keep their children at St. Dunstan's in September even without the nuns on the staff.

"We'll still need 19 more families to make the plan financially feasible," Tresler said. "But we have already had five new families contact us and so now we need only 14 more."

"We also want to contact the balance of that 136 figure sometime this week," he added. The other 26 families were scheduled to be contacted by today, he said.

At the meeting earlier in the week, Tresler said about 325 people attended to talk about the St. Dunstan's situation. At that time the church's pastor, Father Norbert Feely, appointed Frank LaMont as the chairman of the new school board. The rest of the board has not yet been picked.

It was also determined that the tuition at the school will be raised to these figures: $25 per family per month if one child attends the school; $27.50 per family with two children; $30 per family with three or more children. There will be a $5 per month charge added onto those figures for families living outside the parish. And, there will be a flat $25 registration fee as well.

As far as Tresler can predict, there will be no nuns on the teaching faculty. All teachers will be lay individuals, he said. However, there is still a chance that a nun may be principal of the school. That decision has not been reached.

Tresler said he wanted to emphasize that the school will be devoted to providing the community with quality education along with religious instruction.

Candidate Withdraws

Mrs. Esther Talavera, a candidate in the upcoming April 11 Jefferson Elementary School District Board race, has withdrawn from the campaign.

Citing a full schedule of other activities that would have a detrimental effect on her devoting needed time to both the campaign and school district matters, Mrs. Talavera did not offer to support any one of the other three candidates entered.

"When I filed for a seat on the Jefferson Elementary School District Board of Trustees, I had full intentions of giving my campaign the tie, effort and dedication such a serious business deserves," she said.

"This has proven impossible because of my previous equally important obligations, namely my position as E.O.C commissioner, board member of the Guadalupe Health Clinic, and the San Mateo County Mental Health Advisory Board, among others.

"Because of these involvements, I have become very knowledgeable about our district and feel I am qualified to serve on the board.

Bruno Zoning Limit Law Considered by the City Council

A new zoning law which would cut down the size of future apartment houses, and a request for a new planner-manager assistant were among highlights of last week's meeting of the San Bruno City Council.

Councilmen gave their first-reading approval to the ordinance which would provide a minimum of 1,250 square feet of lot space for each apartment until in R2 and R3 (duplex and apartment) zones.

This would cut down the number of units that could be erected on a typical city lot to four. At present, a five-unit apartment may be built on a 5,000 square foot lot, and a six-unit apartment on a 6,000 square foot lot.

Because this will not cut down the value of all R-3 zoned lots — consisting of most of San Bruno between El Camino Real and the railroad tracks — owners of such lots will be given a specific time to build a five or six-unit apartment house on their lot if they should so wish.

No protests were heard to the new law.

Councilmen took under consideration a proposal by new City Mgr. Gerald Minford for a new city position — "assistant to city manager-planning director." Minford urged that the position be established using surplus funds available in the city manager's budget, which accumulated during the delay in naming a city manager.

Minford said that the need is evident in many ways. The new person would be performing work for the planning commission that is simply not being done under the present system in which a planning consultant works one or two days a month. He would also assist Minford in matters of fiscal functions and personnel.

He asked that the position be exempt from civil service requirements, since it is essential that the new person be compatible with the city manager, with whom he will work closely.

Councilmen are now expected to act, at their next meeting, on two ordinances, one establishing the position, and one making it an exempt one.

In other actions of the council:

—Vivian Cronin, secretary for the city engineer and building inspector offices, was given a citatation by Mayor Maury Hamilton for her 20 years of service.

— Mayor Hamilton made a special presentation citing international friendship to two Mexican firemen (called "bomberos") who had been training with the San Bruno Fire Department. Fire Capt. Herman Bolanos translated in both directions.

—Held over a request for a dance permit by Oscar Rodriguez, for March 10 at the Armory until more information could be obtained.

—Heard a petition from residents of Park Boulevard (next to Capuchino High School) complaining of young persons loitering, littering and hot-rodding. Police Chief Russ Cunningham cited four recent "pot busts" in the area as proof that his department is taking action on the situation, and promised that patrols would make special checks.

—Approved a proposal to spend $4,000 for a new diesel engine for a 1958 Coast Fire Truck, upon a report from Fire Chief Herb Freitas that the present gasoline engine would be too expensive to repair.

—Adopted a resolution asking Congress to authorize completion of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers study of formation of the Colma Creek Flood Control District.

—Heard a report from City Clerk Carl Hultberg that February 22 will be the last day to submit arguments for or against the ballot referendum to revoke duplex zoning for Cunningham Glen.

Scavengers Seek 20-Year Pact

Pacifica's Coastside Scavenger Company is seeking a 20-year contract with the city in hopes of amortizing construction of a new solid waste transfer station.

A special study session to discuss the request, which also would necessitate a rezoning, is set for March 1. The scavenger's present contract with the city expires in 1975.

Scavenger president Mario Torrigino made the contract extension request Monday in an undated and unsigned five-page proposal to the city council. He was asked to submit a dated and signed version.

At the same time, he requested that a rezoning he had sought on a parcel in the Rockaway area for truck storage be held up. This is now planned as the transfer station site.

The scavengers presently work out of facilities on Palmetto Avenue, and haul to the Daly City dump.

In his request, Torrigino said, "The present storage area on space requirements for future Palmetto Avenue is already too small. It is estimated that the growth will be approximately 20,000 square feet."

Torrigino's proposal said there would be an estimated gain to the city tax structure in excess of $7,000 a year in property taxes alone.

"The additional franchise fee will, of course, be increased by the increase in business that can be expected from a more efficient business operation, with its attendant growth. In addition there will be considerable one time income in the form of building permit fees and capital improvement fees," said Torrigino's proposal.

St. Clair Won't Seek Assembly

County Supervisor Robert St. Clair disclosed he will not run for the Assembly seat being vacated by Leo J. Ryan.

St. Clair said he decided, after much consideration, not to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination in the Twenty-seventh Assembly District.

In another development in the district, nomination papers were obtained today on behalf of Edward D. Morgan, superintendent of the Jefferson Union High School District, to run for the Republican nomination. He is the second Republican in the race, Ted Long, a former San Bruno city councilman, having paid filing fees Monday.

Morgan's papers were obtained by his campaign manager, Daly City Councilman McRobert Stewart. Morgan is in Honolulu attending a meeting of the Western Association of Schools and Accreditation.

A Bitter Peninsulan Disowns His Parents

By VIRGIL WILSON

"In 1948 at the age of 6, I was placed by the Catholic Social Service in St. Benedict's Home for Boys and made a ward of the court."

The story was being told by Thomas, a 30-year-old Daly City cook, in a letter to the County Board of Supervisors.

He remained at St. Benedict's until he was 15, then was placed in a foster home in Santa Rosa until he was 18.

"During all that time I never saw a member of my family," Thomas said.

When he reached 18 and was released, he went to San Francisco to look for his mother, hoping she would provide him with a place to stay. He had only six months to go to finish high school and had no job and no money.

"When I went to see her to ask for her help," Thomas related, "she closed the door in my face and I slept in doorways and the bus station until I got a job.

"I feel very bitter about my childhood and feel in no way responsible for either of my parents."

The question of responsibility was raised in mid-January when Thomas got a letter from the county welfare department notifying him that he was considered a "responsible adult child" and should contribute some amount monthly toward the support of his mother, who was receiving welfare aid. He wrote to the board, asking to be relieved of the responsibility.

A form notice was sent to Thomas informing him that he would be heard by the board last Tuesday and spelling out the legal requirements to obtain relief:

"You must produce proof, either by a person who is in a position to know the facts other than said parent against whom release is sought, or by documentary or other reliable evidence that, while you were a minor under the age of 18 years of age, you were abandoned by said parent for a period of two or more years and that during such period said parent was physically and mentally able to support you."

Thomas sent another letter saying he couldn't get off work for the hearing but enclosed a note from Zalia Kennedy, a social worker for Catholic Social Service of San Francisco, attesting that Thomas was indeed in their care for 12 years. She said the father had deserted the family and that the mother was mentally incompetent and unable to care for her children.

That, said District Attorney Keith C. Sorenson, appeared to shoot down Thomas' plea for release from responsibility because it was apparent that his mother was not "physically and mentally able" to support him. Instead of denying the request outright, however, the board continued the case for one week and asked Sorenson to get in touch with Thomas and explain the law to him.

Frequently over the years such cases have taken on an emotional quality when they have come up for consideration. A former supervisor, Thomas J. Callan, believed that it was improper for anyone, under any circumstances, to fail to support a family member to the best of his ability. He invariably voted against all such applications, regardless of the law.

Most supervisors have followed the law as outlined by Sorenson, however, even though they might not agree that what they were doing was the right thing.

That may change, however. The board has asked Sorenson to study the possibility of proposing that the law be changed to permit them to grant relief in such cases as that of Thomas. The request was made during consideration of another case in which a man was being asked to contribute to the support of his father, although he had never met him. His appeal was denied because the father had spent the entire time in Agnews State Hospital and did not have the ability to support his son.

Supervisor Robert St. Clair said the case illustrated a "shortcoming" in the law and urged that it be changed. Chairman Gerald F. Day agreed. "It does seem rather an injustice," he said.

Sorenson said he would make the study but warned that "there is another side of the coin.

"The same law makes parents responsible for their children," he explained.

Plan to Reduce Jet Noise Announced: Keep Planes Higher

By GEORGE GOLDING

A move to reduce jet noise by keeping airplanes higher while making landing approaches, was announced Thursday in Los Angeles and is already being used by some pilots in the San Francisco Bay Area.

PSA President J. Floyd Andrews asked other airlines to join his in reducing aircraft noise by making "two-step" approaches during visual flying weather.

Andrews announced adoption of the new procedure for all good weather approaches to Los Angeles International, after but also the other commuters like Air California and United pilots who are in this corridor every day, have been using this technique for some time," he said.

"It makes the other planes which are closer to the instrument glide slope seem noisy by months of testing.

Spokesmen for PSA said the airline would "concentrate on Los Angeles International for a month or so, and then adapt this approach procedure to other major airports where it is needed and where operating factors will allow.

But Dean Cooper, deputy chief of the San Francisco control tower, said PSA pilots and some others are already voluntarily using the two-step approach here during visual flying weather.

"The PSA pilots in particular, comparison, but we have to commend them for this voluntary step in reducing aircraft noise over our neighboring communities."

He said the procedure allows a pilot who has complete visibility, to remain at about 3000 feet altitude while crossing Foster City to make a landing to the northwest, instead of flying a glide slope altitude of 1200 to 1800 feet, and then make a steeper than usual desent.

The two-step approach particularly benefits Foster City, over which some 78 per cent of all landing approaches are made toward San Francisco International.

It is reported that a large number of airline landings at San Francisco International are made on instruments even in good weather, so that pilots will be proficient in the more difficult techniques when bad weather arrives.

American Airlines and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration last summer conducted tests on making "two-step" approaches during instrument landings, at Moffett Field. Although they reported some success, the technique would require installation of expensive electronic equipment on the ground and in the aircraft. It is reported that such equipment has not yet been perfected.

The two-step landing approach is contrary to the usual landing technique whereby a pilot establishes a gentle glide slope as far from the airport as he can, and then maintains a steady descent to the landing field. Instrument and visual techniques are kept nearly identical, so that pilots will not be confused by shifting demands when the weather changes.

In Los Angeles, Andrews said the new procedures will reduce jet noise over noise-sensitive communities as much as five and a half miles from the airport.

"Approaching the airport for a landing to the west, PSA aircraft will maintain a much higher altitude while east of the outer marker (a narrow-beam radio transmitter 5½ miles from the airport). By reducing engine power at this point, the aircraft glides down from this higher altitude until it reaches a point 1½ miles from the airport at 800 to 900 feet. Then necessary power is supplied for a safe, smooth landing."

Billy D. Ray, PSA vice president of flight operations, said passengers will be unaware of the new procedures since the airplane will remain in a completely normal position, during the descent.

"The airplane's descent is achieved by a combination of power and flaps, and retains the proper speed and altitude without running the engines at their usual level," he said.

PSA Chief Pilot Don Dolan said the aircraft will maintain 3,000 feet altitude at the outer marker, instead of the usual 1800 feet.

Los Angeles Airport Manager Clifton A. Moore said the technique has proved helpful.

"At four miles out, over the Hollywood Park racetrack, the noise received on the ground from PSA jets overhead was reduced by 16 perceived noise decibels. At two miles out, the noise was reduced by 11 pndb, and at 1½ miles out, the noise was reduced by 5 to 6 pndb.

Noise detection devices operated for the Los Angeles Department of Airports test by the consulting firm of Bolt, Beranek & Newman, measured a 60 to 70 per cent reduction in noise from PSA aircraft, as compared to noise produced by similar aircraft making approaches to Los Angeles International Airport, Moore said.

Liquor Law Violations Charged

An accusation charging Bob St. Clair Liquors in San Francisco with three counts of liquor law violations has been registered with the state department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, it was learned.

The office of Jay D. Caldis, ABC district administrator, said the accusation alleges sales of liquor below posted minimum prices set by the brand owners.

A spokesman said the accusation was registered February 9 and that a hearing should be scheduled within 30 days at an undetermined location in San Francisco.

St. Clair was in San Diego today and could not be reached for comment.

Two Localities To Attend Meet At Anaheim Site

Two Peninsulans will be in Anaheim February 27 for the annual meeting of the California Court, Women Descendants of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts.

Localities who will attend the conclave at the Disneyland Hotel include Mrs. John G. W. Melbin of San Bruno, national organizing secretary, and Mrs. A. Oliver Ninteman of South San Francisco, California Court president.

The organization traces its roots to 1537 when King Henry VIII of England granted a royal charter for an artillery company to act as his personal bodyguard. The first American settlers formed a similar group and present membership is comprised of any woman 18 years of age or older who is lineally descended from early U.S. members.

Don't Settle For Imitations

If you are a Busby Berkeley fan there are scores of his films around, from private film clubs, to neighborhood theater reruns, to the late TV shows. So it's a shame to settle for imitation, which is mostly what Ken Russell's "The Boy Friend," is in its current run at the Hyatt Cinema Theater in Burlingame.

On many levels, the Sandy Wilson 18-year-old stage musical is delightful and whimsical, especially with Twiggy playing the innocent ingenue, a role that catapulted Julie Andrews to fame. But more often, it is excessive and lacking in that special magic necessary to the charm of this Twenties spoof.

But then Ken Russell is not known for his subtlety and the total impact of the film, while it has pretty and pleasant moments, is that of his thumbing his nose at Hollywood.

For all its dazzle (and there is a monstrous amount) the elements of greed and lust, selfishness and double cross mar the delicacy of the original theme.

It's not as if he were rewriting Shakespeare, but if he outdances, out-costumes and destroys the spirit of the once fey pastiche, why didn't he leave it alone and make a different musical. At least he left the songs intact, adding two marvelously memorable old ballads, "All I Do Is Dream Of You" and "You Are My Lucky Star" for Twiggy's solos.

The lithe former model is a joy to watch. She's almost ethereal with pale face and enormous eyes and she dances brightly and sings in a nice, thin nymphet voice. The pretty new star is really worth seeing because there is no one like her on the screen today. If she learns to act, she'll be a formidable runner-up for a new style star-image.

Despite a never-ending succession of big, splashy musical production numbers (ala Berkeley and his bevy of beauties), the film has a sluggish pace and whatever anticipation you began with at the opening scenes, you're quite depleted by the end. "The Boy Friend" is there somewhere, but outrageously disguised by an overlay of visual gimmickry. Lack of prudence to the point of overkill has dragged the joyous little British musical into the coarse, harsh world of reality.

The musical is backed into by having Twiggy play the stage manager who must go on in a stage version of "The Boy Friend" when the star sprains her ankle. The injured party is played by Glenda Jackson who in a cameo bit almost steals the picture when her officious and resentful attitude turns to tender support.

The lascivious new character of a leering producer has been added so that all the kids in the show hustle the spotlight for a chance in his movie. He is named De Thrill, which gives you an insight to his character.

Besides not knowing how to sing or dance or even the words of the songs (which she has to read onstage) Twiggy's Polly is in love with the show's leading man, played by Christopher Gable. A jealousy aspect has further complicated the entangled plot. The fantasy scenes of screen images from the Twenties and thirties embroiders the story beyond recognition.

Antonia Ellis and Tommy Tune do some fancy footwork, but the choregraphy is not particularly distinguished.

Comp Fire Girls Host Blue Birds

The WA HAN KA fifth grade Camp Fire Girls from Lincoln, Edison and Holy Angels schools in Daly City - Colma were hosts recently to the Flying Blue Birds, a third grade group from M. Pauline Brown, Edison, Webster and Holy Angels schools.

The Camp Fire girls held a candlelight ceremonial at which they were presented the honor beads they had earned during the last few months. Two national awards were also presented to the girls who earned them at the ceremonial.

The "Keep America Beautiful" disk was presented to Laura Anderson, Linda Fithian, Colleen O'Callaghan, Jackie Ryan, Corrine Schoepp and Ellyn Stuhr. These girls planted 75 trees at the state beach in Half Moon Bay to earn the award.

Three year membership awards went to Linda Fithian, Lynette Irwin, Cathy Quinn and Corinne Schoepp. Also participating in the ceremonial and receiving honor beads was Janet McCarthy.

After the candles were extinguished the girls told the Blue Birds how they earned their honor beads and worked on their rank. They then presented a story in Indian symbols.

The Blue Bird group will be flying up to Camp Fire Girls in the spring so the meeting was to help show them what Camp Fire girls do.

At the end of the afternoon the Wa Han Ka group led a songfest and served refreshments to the Flying Blue Birds. Dinner out on Saturday evening is one of the nicer ways to celebrate the weekend. If you happen to enjoy spaghetti, you can enjoy someone else's cooking, have live music to entertain you while you dine, let someone do the dishes and help a worthy cause as well! If that sounds like an ideal idea for this weekend plan to enjoy the spaghetti dinner being sponsored by the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine program at Holy Angels Catholic Church.

Mrs. Becky Salazar is the chairman of the dinner, which is staged annually to raise money for educational materials used in the parish's C.C.D. classes.

According to Mrs. George Sigigie of the Women's Guild, the committee will begin serving dinner at 3:30 p.m. and continue to do so until 7 p.m. Adults will be asked to donate $2 to the C.C.D. fund and children under 12 will be served if they contribute $1.

There will be no charge for dinner guests under five years of age. Tables will be set in the parish hall and volunteers from the parish will be assisting with the serving.

No reservations are required for the dinner. Anyone wishing more information about the meal is urged to call Mrs. Salazar, 756-6727.

In other word from Holy Angels parish, Mrs. Nemer Gonzales and Mrs. Warren Wilkinson, the co-chairmen of the guild's rummage sale, are still accepting donations for the sale to be held on March 4.

Clean and usable clothing, bric-a-brac, records, appliances, books and jewelry may be left at Mrs. Gonzales' home in any Tuesday between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. or on Saturdays between 10 a.m. and noon.

THE WOMEN'S BRANCH of the Bay Area Council for Soviet Jewry is currently holding informational meetings in this area to acquaint localites with the work of the council and exploring the possibility of adopting a Soviet Jewish family, according to Mrs. Sam Krips, the Daly City-Colma liaison officer for the women's unit.

According to Mrs. Krips the council, whose members include persons of the Roman Catholic and Protestant faiths, as well as Jewish families, will hold a number of gatherings in this area to familiarize any interested persons with the goals and programs of the group. For information about meeting times and locations call Mrs. Krips at 992-9090.

FEBRUARY 29, the members of the Abraham Lincoln P-TA will observe Founder's Day with a presentation of an Honorary Life Membership to one of the unit's most devoted workers and with a delightful student talent show.

According to Mrs. William Holland, publicity chairman of the school's P-TA, the evening meeting will be opened by Mrs. Sheryn Smith, the president, who will tell the story of the P-TA's origin. Following her remarks Kenneth McCormich, the school's fifth grade teacher, will present the children in an unique potpourri of presentations.

Students that have a hard time choosing among popular high school personalities during student body elections had it easy this year.

The ballots contained only six names for the nine offices.

"Elected" to the executive offices were: President, Lee Shackelford; vice-president, Sheryl Petersen; secretary, Terri Creighton; treasurer, Pat Connolly; commissioner of publicity, Kathy Fukami, and commissioner of Athletics, Dave Bier.

The remaining offices had to be filled by appointment by the old Executive Board. They are commissioner of rallies and assemblies, Denise Crouch, and commissioner of clubs, Roxana Gonzales.

Although the interest in student government activities and even school dances has been declining throughout the last few years, this year it seems to have reached an all-time low.

The General Reaction among students was that the election was a "farce."

"Communist elections," "It's meaningless," and "It's a waste of class time, and a waste of money for processing the IBM ballots," were some of the comments that students made.

Some people gave credit to the students that ran, and defended them by saying that they were the only students out of the whole student body showing sincere interest in their school.

Some brushed it off lightly by saying that the reason that college-bound students ran was to "have another little check mark on their activities record."

Another student said it was the lack of available competition which attracted the students to run in the first place.

"There are a few gunho people who know that they can get elected because nobody else is running against them," one pupil said.

It Must Have confused the freshmen tending to enter high school believing that school elections were the ultimate test of popularity, and a step up on the ladder of social status.

Even the so-called "popularity" students didn't bother to run this time.

When a senior girl was asked what the function of the Executive Board was, she said, "I don't even think they know." She later added that they have the role of getting activity dates and in distributing student body funds and getting up sports rallies, but she admitted that there was a definite lack of communication between the Executive Board and the student body.

Openings at YWCA Widget World School

Parents of children aged from two years, nine months to six years are reminded of the YWCA Widget World Nursery School program which runs from September to June.

The nursery school supplements and enriches home training. Children paint, paste, dress-up, build with blocks, play with clay, enjoy table toys, water play, music, dance and stories. From time to time there are special projects which vary from cooking to carpentry.

New "Y" classes scheduled to start in March include Ballroom Dancing, Driver Training, Tennis and Trimnastics.

Pinewood Derby By D.C. Pack 63

Pack 63 Cubs celebrated their birthday by having their annual Pinewood Derby at Westmoor High School's cafeteria.

Cubmaster Herb Luders was in charge.

To celebrate both events, each Den decorated its own table for families and friends.

Most important event of the evening was the Pinewood Derby. Each boy, with or without the help of his father, made his own car, which had to weigh up to, but not over five ounces. The cars were weighed in when the boys arrived.

Before the race began the cars were judged for design. Three impartial judges were chosen: Al Vial, P.G. & E. Northern San Mateo County District manager; Dave MacAbee, Daly City engineer and Larry Clary, assistant district executive, Boy Scouts of America.

The first place for design was won by Gerald McFadden, second place by Gregory Farr and third place by Kevin Garry.

MacAbee presented the trophies.

The boys first competed for speed:

Den 1 — First place Guy Nicholas; second, Gary Borghello; third, James Fabrique.

Den 2 — First place, David Bowdish; second, Enrico Acquisti; third, Ted Davis.

Den 3 — First place, Rob Mascheroni; second, David Egert; third, Steven Cardarelli.

Den 4 — First place, Michael Rubin; second, Steven Kunst; third, Theodore Kratter.

Den 5 — First place, Gregory Farr; second, Anthony Poules; third, Kenneth Gayton.

Den 7 — First place, Michael Luders; second Jeff Diodati; third, John Nagy.

Webelos — First place, Geoffrey Farr; second, Kevin Garry; third, Marc Reynolds.

These boys were given ribbons for first, second and third places and all boys who participated were given a ribbon for participation.

First place winners then competed for the grand prizes in speed.

First place went to Gregory Farr, second to Mike Rubin, and third to Robbie Mascheroni. Trophies were presented to these boys by Hank Dapkus, awards chairman.

The following day the boys displayed their Pinewood Derby track and raced their cars on it in the Serramonte Shopping Center Mall during Scout Day.

They received a trophy as the best Cub Pack display.

Good morning, good cooks.

Let's declare this "Ground-Beef-Makes-the-Meal-Week." As proof of this idea, here are some recipes that combine ground meat with vegetables and sauces to make attractive and appealing diners.

SWEET AND SOUR MEATBALLS
CHARD ROLLS

2 medium onions, chopped
1 tablespoon oil
1 pound ground meat
½ teaspoon salt
an egg
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup cornflakes
¼ cup milk
tomato juice
a small head red cabbage
¼ cup lemon juice
½ cup sugar

Saute the chopped onions in the tablespoon oil. In a medium mixing bowl combine the pound meat, one egg, half teaspoon salt, fourth teaspoon pepper, one cup cornflakes and fourth cup milk. Shape into small meatballs; brown in onion glaze. Add enough tomato juice to cover.

Shred the small head red cabbage. Place on top of meat balls, cover and simmer about 1½ hours or until tender. Combine the fourth cup lemon juice and half cup sugar and stir into cabbage and meatballs. Simmer again for 5 minutes.

Mashed potatoes go especially well with this dish.

AND YET ANOTHER way to serve ground beef and a vegetable, combine beef with Parmesan cheese, onion and lots of other good things, roll in chard leaves and cook all in a rich spaghetti sauce.

a pound of ground beef
¼ cup Parmesan cheese
1 small onion, finely chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
¾ teaspoon salt
pepper to taste
1 can tomato sauce
½ cup instant or minute rice, uncooked
1 large bunch chard
1 can solid pack tomatoes
1 package spaghetti sauce mix

Combine the pound ground beef, fourth cup Parmesan cheese, one chopped onion, one clove minced garlic, three-fourths teaspoon salt, pepper, one can tomato sauce and one-half cup raw minute rice.

Clean the chard and cut off white stems. (You chop these up and add to the dish later.) Shape the meat mixture into small rolls and wrap in the chard leaves. Using a Dutch oven or large covered pan, place the chard rolls carefully and add the chopped white stems if you wish.

Prepare the spaghetti sauce as directed on package using solid pack tomatoes. Pour over chard rolls. Cover and cook moderate to low heat for about an hour. (It took an hour and a quarter for the rice to reach the degree of tenderness my family likes.)

Lift rolls onto large serving platter. Spoon sauce over top.

THERE WERE ERRORS in the recipe for Sunshine Dream Bars in last week's column.

SUNSHINE DREAM BARS

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
⅓ cup granulated sugar
2 teaspoons lemon rind, grated
¼ cup butter
¼ cup (2 ounces) cream cheese.

Resift the one cup flour with the third cup sugar; combine with two teaspoons lemon rind. Cut in the fourth cup each butter and cream cheese until particles are fine. Press this mixture into bottom of well greased 13x9-inch pan and bake in 350-degree oven 12 to 15 minutes or until light, golden brown.

LEMON CHEESE FILLING

¾ cup (6 ounces) cream cheese
1-3 cup sugar
2 unbeaten eggs
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Cream the six ounces cream cheese with the third cup sugar. Blend in the two unbeaten eggs, one at a time. Add the one teaspoon lemon rind and two tablespoons lemon juice. Pour over baked crust.

GOLDEN NUT TOPPING

2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped walnuts

Beat the two eggs with one teaspoon vanilla until foamy. Gradually add the one cup brown sugar; beat well. Resift the two tablespoons flour with the teaspoon baking powder and one-half teaspoon salt. Add to creamed mixture and blend well. Stir in three-fourths cup of nuts. Spoon topping over filling. Sprinkle with the remaining one-fourth cup nuts.

Bake in 350-degree oven 25 to 30 minutes. Cool; cut into bars with damp knife. If desired, sprinkle with powdered sugar before serving. Makes about 3 dozen cookies. Store in refrigerator.

Girl Scout Roundup

'Happening' Due in D.C.

Ninety-one troops representing all four levels of Girl Scouting have now signed up for the March 11 Happening at the Serramonte mall.

Forty Daly City troops, nine from Pacifica, 12 from San Bruno, 14 from South San Francisco and 16 from Tri-City (which includes Burlingame, Millbrae and Hillsborough) are now committed for this extensive display of Girl Scouting in action.

A recycling center will be set up at Serramonte High to be manned by Girl Scout fathers and older Girl Scouts. Specific dumping information will be given by this paper closer to the Happening time.

The program will present girls from the ages of seven to 17, as Brownies, Juniors, Cadettes and Seniors in demonstrations of their interests in the arts, the home and the out-of-doors.

Collection of empty bottles, cans, paper and cardboard will be featured at the special recycling center manned by the Dads (and brothers) for Memorial Building in Daly City yesterday.

Girls from every section of Daly City are urged to attend this special program which will be followed by folk dancing to represent most members of the World Association of Girl Scouting.

Mariner Girl Scout ship No. 13, the Flying Cloud, of Daly City, advised by Mrs. Margaret Damon, recently took Brownie Girl Scout troop No. 1240 on a singing party to the Fifth Avenue Rest Home in San Francisco to entertain the ladies.

Participating were Robin Christian, Twila Foster, Cathy and Denise Lapachet, Darice Robinson, Jane Stewart, Cathy Albrecht, Tracy Brandt, Ann Zoft, Jackie Ketchum and Rusty Sharp.

Cake and punch was served at one of the senior's homes where the girls played games after singing. Candy memories were distributed.

International opportunities, an art experience, films, a panel discussion on dating, small discussion groups and entertainment provided by the Soul Sonics were enjoyed by Daly City Girl Scout Cadettes at their recent conference at Serramonte High.

Local girls reporting on their opportunity trips this past summer were Denise Lapachet: The City, Now! Tomorrow!; Jackie Ketchum: Human Relations Conference at Mills College; Selene Bauer: Aboard the Queen Mary; and Cathy Walters: Totem Council event.

Parent-teen relations was the topic covered by Miss Julie Jensen, a counselor at Jefferson, in a discussion which involved all the girls.

The panel discussion on dating was moderated by Dion Dubois with Sharell Korbus, Robert McFadden, Amy Hall, Scott Rhoades, Pete Diaz, Mike Jones and Nancy Benoni, representing all three of Daly City's high schools.

Seniors registering and helping the girls included Carolyn Manbert, Maureen Patricia Conway, Joan Hidzick, Diane Lipman and Nancy Luders.

Adults of the Girl Scout Association helping the girl's program included Mesdames Rush Manbert, advisor of Senior troop No. 24; Rodman Barnes, director of consultants; William Kennaugh, association chairman, and Stanley Rushton, special events chairman.

A candlelight investiture marked the highlight of Cadette Girl Scout troop No. 43 ceremonial meeting. The troop is led by Mrs. Ramon Nielsen and meets at Garden Village school.

A flag ceremony marked the opening and refreshments were served by the eight grade girls as all enjoyed the casual entertainment.

The program included a rededication by each girl by lighting the candles to signify the three parts of the Girl Scout promise and the 10 Girl Scout laws.

Each girl also received her new troop crest (the Star of Bethlehem) and signed the troop charter.

Registered girls include Cindy Ahern, Debbie Bell, Maureen Bertorelli, Maureen Bigon, Connie Burrows, Patty Byrne, Elaine Czeikowitz, Joann Dennys, Marian Fitzpatrick, Mari Kirrane, Moya Lapperty, Terry Macia, Debbie Minkel, Ruth Mordokowicz, Shawn Murray, Kim Nielsen, Vivian Paterson, Juoy Reschke, Pam Ruggiero and Rosemary Skirra.

The challenge of active citizenship in the Cadette Girl Scout program was served by girls of Cadette troop No. 8 of Daly City as they donated time to a local Congressman recently.

Nancy Bandoni, Catherine, Elizabeth and Rosemarie Casserza, Debbie Firpo, Theresa Geaziani, Karen Pleich, Judy Provenzale, Deena Quigley, Debbie Thurman, Lori Whitaker and Paulette Young participated in the service project which will continue in January.

Senior Girl Scout troops for the Daly City Area, according to Mrs. L. B. Burn, Daly City Girl Scout Association registrar, include two local troops.

The Mariner Senior troop is led by Mesdames Ralph Damon (Margaret), Richard Bennallach (Lana) and Misses Denise Lapachet and Jackie Ketchum with Mrs. David C. Bacon as troop committee chairman.

The Panorama troop is led by Mesdames Rush Manbert (Lois), George Hidzick (Isabel) and Lawrence Anderson (Jane) and the troop committee chairman is Mrs. Salvadore Scaduto (Pauline).

Mrs. L. B. Burn, Daly City Girl Scout Association registrar, announces the following Cadette leaders serving the 12 to 14-year-old age group:

Troop No. 8, Mesdames John Young and Carl J. Firpo and Miss Diane Pravanzale with troop committee chairman Mrs. James Morino, meet at Colma K-6 School; No. 43, Mesdames Ramon S. Nielsen and Egan Reschke; No. 124, Mesdames Modesto Pina Jr. and Robert Hadler, and No. 594, Mrs. William E. Thomas.

Troop No. 716 is led by Mesdames William Franke and John Klatt; No. 1620 by Mesdames Robert Fernandez, H. C. Luders and Barbara Penny and the troop committee is chaired by Mrs. F. Ridge.

Troop No. 2584 is led by Mesdames Paul Walters and Albert C. McGuirk.

Sustaining Membership Enrollment coordinators for Northern San Mateo County's just concluding drive included Daly City's Paul Walters; South San Francisco's Charles Holdiman; San Bruno's Harold Harlan Jr.; Pacifica's John F. Smith and Tri-City's Thomas L. Banks. Chairman is Al Schwarzbach. (Tri City includes Burlingame, Millbrae and Hillsborough.)

SME is a fund-raising program of the Girl Scout Council, emphasizing the use of "Dads for Daughters," and supplements the funds provided by the United Bay Area Crusade.

Parents of Girl Scouts, who benefit directly, and friends of scouting in the community which benefit indirectly, are the only sources for the additional funds required.

UBAC provides 46 per cent of the council budget; girls provide about 17 per cent through cookie and calendar sales and resident camps are self-supporting for summer operation. The balance is provided through SME.

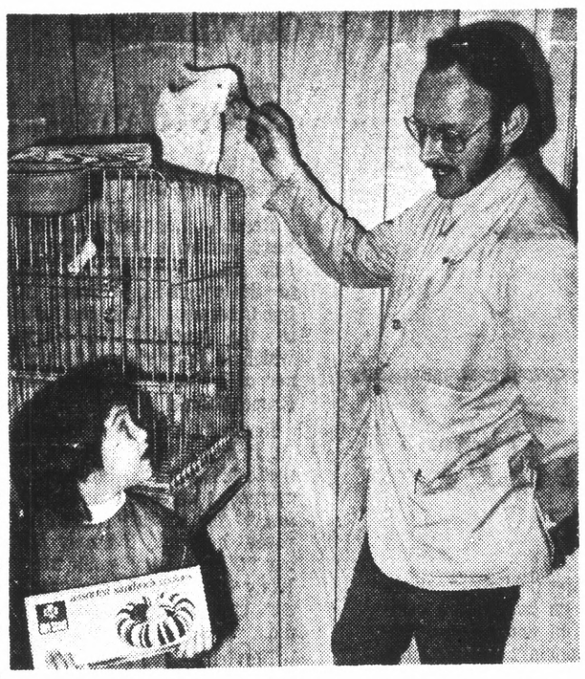
Daly City's Miss Shelley Fernandez, a teacher of the foreign-born in the JESD and a member of the San Francisco Bay Girl Scout Council, recently (January 15) presented with Ike Tribble, HEW department consultant, a study report to the council entitled "Bay Area Minority Community and the Girl Scouts."

In 1967 the Girl Scout Council stated its belief that "girls benefit most from membership in troops of wide range, diversified as to race, religion and cultural background." For four years they have put major effort into activating this policy but have meet with limited success in recruiting such girls and adults.

The five-county Girl Scout Council, a United Bay Area Crusade agency, wanting to increase its own efforts to serve these girls, retained professional minority consultants a year ago to review services.

Mrs. Fernandez' committee, chaired by Tribble, reported a number of recommendations based on the results of the minority study. This study examined attitudes of a wide variety of Girl Scout members and non-members — black, chicano and white.

Social Dynamics, Inc., a black Berkeley-based firm, and U.S. Human Resources Corp., a Chicano Firm based in San Francisco's Mission, produced the original report.



EVERYBODY, the Girl Scouts say, like their cookies, including the Cockatoo being fed by Jack Flynn while Lorelei Morino holds box. Sale of the noted Girl Scout cookie starts March 3 in northern San Mateo County. (Post Photo)

MRS. STANLEY RUSHTON, Daly City Girl Scout Association special events coordinator was responsible for the "Thinking Day" celebration yesterday and is a member of the planning board for the "Happening" to be held March 11

Daughters groups of the Northern San Mateo County's Girl Scout Associations.

Serramonte High's student parking lot will be the locale for this special project to take place during Saturday of Girl Scout week, March 11, but local residents are asked to start their sorting now.

According to project developer, Mrs. George Hidzick, bottles should have neck rings removed, be washed and sorted by color, i.e., clear, brown or green.

Aluminum cans should be washed and squashed, mixed metal cans (those with seams and a pop top) should be separated, washed and squashed.

Tin cans should have their labels removed and sides squashed. Paper should be sorted into newspapers and cardboard. The center will not be able to accept magazines.

Continuing the on-going program of training for Girl Scout leaders, Hope Lutheran Church in Daly City was recently the setting for a two-level workshop on program, according to Mrs. James Scott, training coordinator.

Brownie troop leaders studied troop government and girl-planning on the level of the younger girls and junior leaders discussed badge standards.

The afternoon workshop attracted a great many experienced as well as new leaders.

"Thinking Day," a program held in conjunction with other celebrations throughout the world, representing a foundation element of Girl Scouting, was celebrated at the War

The 'Anatomy' of South S.F.

Last month a San Francisco newspaper published an article in which South San Francisco was referred to as the "armpit of the Peninsula," because of its acres of industrial plants belching smoke.

Last week another article on South San Francisco in a San Francisco paper referred to Councilmen Frank Bertucelli, Patrick Ahern and Bill Borba as an unofficial troika running the city.

No mention, however, was made as to what part of the anatomy they represent.

The first article contained mostly what is commonly referred to as public relations puff. Whereas, the second showed a sample of South San Francisco's real interworkings, as it dissected the functioning of the city's personnel board.

It's true. The personnel board in South San Francisco does command a vast authority. Without a doubt, too much for the expertise the members have in the field of personnel.

Five amateurs do the interviewing for all jobs, mundane to the most technical. They determine how, when and what is advertised when the city is seeking new help. They even set up recruitment procedures.

The personnel board, in reality should be concerned with one mai thing; hearing grievances by employes.

The League of California Cities, the National Civil Service League, the Public Personnel Association, in fact most every professional personnel organization, recommends leaving the personnel matters per se to the professionals.

South San Francisco, the Industrial City, obviously is loaded with talented personnel people, experts on recruiting, hiring, firing and discipline. It is embarrasingly easy to get talented, qualified personnel board members. And they want to serve. It's obvious, however, that's not what the present power structure wants. They recently got rid of the most qualified man the city ever had.

Most cities publicly announce openings on boards and commissions. In South San Francisco re-appointments are automatic. Appointments are predicated not on what your experience and dedication is to doing a proper, adequate and even efficient job. Rather, it is based on your dedication to the man who can get you on that board or commission, and how well you serve him.

Anyone who has observed South San Francisco politics knows there's only three sure ways to be appointed to a board or commission. You can be a campaign worker, a campaign manager, or eschewing that, be a campaign financial contributor.

Years ago, personnel boards were set up as independent bodies to keep a check on corruption at city hall.

In South San Francisco, as has been adequately pointed out, the personnel system needs to be revamped, because the public it was set up to protect is actually getting the short end of the stick.

Our Viewpoint

Residents in Uproar

Editor, The Post:

Recently many articles have been printed in various Peninsula newspapers in reference to the opposition of many of the Crestmoor Park residents to the proposed 7-11 Store which is to be built on the corner of Cretmoor Drive and San Bruno Avenue.

Residents are in an uproar. At first I seemed rather apathetic about the whole affair. It seemed a waste of time and effort to try to put off this proposed building. I simply felt our "City Fathers" would most likely disregard the feelings of our city residents, and they did.

The facts have been aired at various city council meetings and then following through in the local newspapers. The anticipated traffic hazards, the ensuing litter problem, and the lights glaring at our city residents all night long all seem to be negative factors. All of these things have been thrashed out with the city council and the owner, but we still cannot stop the building of this store.

I agree that the purchase of this lot by Mr. Berryman would be a loss to him if it did not become a money making enterprise but — he and the rest of the people who bought up land parcels in San Bruno years ago for a fraction of their present day value are ruining our city. The evergrowing Junipero Serra Freeway was bad enough but now through the efforts of all these various land owners San Bruno is getting to be an evergrowing metropolis. We became San Bruno residents almost 13 years ago. At that time San Bruno was a small, quaint and beautiful city. Now it is at it's rack and ruin at the hands of all sorts of builders. First a major portion of our beautiful trees were slain, now every square inch of this city seems to be turning into commercial property.

In a day of ecology mindedness these people seem to be doing their best to ruin San Bruno. Would it be such a crime to let some of this land go to bettering our community? Why must every green square inch of this city be developed, every empty lot become another 7-11?

BERNIEL ANDERSEN,
San Bruno.

Morman Sam Wins Booze

GUESS WHO WON the booze at last week's meeting of the Lions Club in Daly City? Sam Chandler, that's who! Sam is a Post columnist. If that doesn't grab you, this will: Sam is also a Mormon. He promised to bring the winnings to church, but we heard he had a last minute change of heart. He doesn't smoke either.

THERE WAS A NEWS blurb in the D.C. Host Lions Club bulletin of last week that noted former City Treasurer Joe Lewkowitz (who turned over the money matters to Anthony Zidich a couple months back) was "feeling hail and hearty." Seems Joe felt good enough to go home. But he is now back in Mary's Help Hospital. Cards and letters, no visitors please.

ALL YOU BACCALAS NOTE — This humble and dedicated (but talented) columnist is going to be a JUDGE at the Student Speakers' Contest at Vincenzo's Grotto on February 23. And they said I wouldn't ever amount to nutting. Boy, dey oughta see me now.

MORE THAN THREE WEEKS ago we told you readers that Supervisor Bob St. Clair Would Not Run for the Assembly seat vacated by Leo J. Ryan. We don't beat around the bush. We make solid statements that can be backed up. In the next few weeks we'll even tell you readers who will WIN the races. How about that? Gutty, hey?

GROWING PAINS IN D.C. — City Planner John Walker predicts that the city population of Daly City will hit 70,000 within two-three months. It has spouted 2,600 more people since April 1970.

RUTH GALINDO DIDN'T say what other paper reported: "The ten year law makes it especially hard to remove teachers . . ." What she said, and what didn't sink in, was "The TENURE law . . ." Someone out to do her in, hmmmmm?

THERE ONCE WAS A newspaper around town which always boasted they were "The only newspaper completely dedicated to Daly City." Much todo was made about the fact they were the "hometown" paper and stuck it out while other papers set up shop elsewhere. News is out that this "official" Daly City paper has shifted its operations to South San Francisco. Oh, there's an answering service at the old address, but nothing else.

MAMA MIA THEY ATE — 15 Bomberos (Mexican firefighters) dined at Toto's the other night courtesy of host Toto Spadarella who started them off with soup, salad and pizza and went the whole Italian food route. Said Toto: "If they can fight fire like they can eat . . . Mama Mia."

AND SPEAKING OF TOTO. He isn't going to enter the GOP Assembly race against Edward Morgan or Ted Long. No sweat, fellas.

'TIS THE SEASON for muckraking and one candidate in Daly City is doing his fair share. He has dug and dreamed things up about others that sicken even this veteran newsman. He wants others to do his dirty work for him, namely this paper. No thanks, fella. You got something, we'll listen. But to date this guy hasn't gotten a thing except a shovel which he uses — every time elections roll around — to build mountains out of molehills.

HOW ABOUT THAT Grace McCarthy. Read an entire welcome speech in Mexican for a group of visiting firemen from south of the border. Wasn't it the late John Kennedy who used this method to break the ice between the people and government? Not understanding the language we won't be able to tell for some time if we are still welcome in Mexico or are persona non brata.

The applause indicated we will be welcome. Thanks, mayor.

CITY TREASURER CANDIDATE Maury Tolson has charged he wasn't invited to the Daly City Employes Awards night last week. After checking the matter out with City Hall we learn the event was open to anyone who wanted to pay the price of entry. No invites were sent out and no conspiracy was involved to keep Tolson away from the proceedings, which he did attend. End of that matter.

This Sober Newsman Flubs a Driver Test

By JACK RUSSELL

The press release says clearly that the Phystester is able to detect a significant percentage of the drunk driving population while permitting qualified sober drivers to use their cars.

Very good.

But to the average fumble fingered newsman it looked like a formidable task. And thus it proved.

The Phystester is a gadget built into a few demonstration cars resembling a hand telephone. The only one on the Peninsula is operated by R. Stanley Maddox, General Motors executive who tooled in tour paper's parking lot with it the other day.

We watched as demonstrator Maddox neatly flipped the necessary switches. The test can check human faculties that are degraded early by excessive amounts of alcohol: short-term memory, co-ordinated motor response and judgment.

The rules are simple. First the driver holds the device in his left hand and pushes an activating switch. This causes a series of five digits to flash on the tiny screen and then flash off in less than two seconds. You then must push the keys in proper sequence within 4.5 seconds to start the ignition.

Sounds simple.

There is a little trick to it, however. At the same time you are frantically remembering the sequence and then beginning the punching at any time a sign will flash on saying "brake." This means you must hit the brake pedal at the same time you are punching the digits. If you miss you try again. Three blunders and you have to start a whole new code sequence.

With no pressure to get the car started in a sunny parking lot we still muffed eight straight tries before hitting the right combination.

"Don't worry," he said. "With a little practice you will get it down easy."

Think of the harried driver whose car stalls on the bridge in a downpour as cars and trucks back up with tooting and cursing drivers.

Or the housewife rushing her sick baby to he doctor. Or the man exhausted after a hard day in the office or in the factory. Does his reflexes have to be razor sharp in order to get home?

Can you picture Nate Thurmond lunging out to his parked silver Rolls at the Oakland Coliseum at midnight after 48 minutes of battling Kareem Abdul Jabbar in a crucial game and then trying to punch the proper sequence while visions of dunk shots dance in his head.

Delco Electronics, deviser of the Phystester admits that there are flaws but does have some answers for some tough questions.

Q. When will the Phystester be introduced in automobiles?

A. The Phystester program is experimental at this time. It still is undergoing evaluation. Many obstacles would need to be cleared before a device like the Phystester could be installed in all motor vehicles. Most likely, "across-the-board" installation would involve legislation or government directives.

Q. What if a person is unable to pass the Phystester test while they are sober?

A. If after familiarization with the Phystester, an individual can't pass the test, the question is raised: Should this person be driving?

Q. What about an emergency situation? For example, if a father was rushing an injured child to the hospital, and was too nervous to pass the test, how could he start the car?

A. There are two schools of thought on how to deal with emergency situations:

1. If a person is too emotionally upset to pass the test, should he be driving? Perhaps, it would be better to request assistance from the police.

2. A bypass switch can be built into the Phystester. By activating the bypass switch an individual could start the car without taking the Phystester test. But in so doing, he would activate the hazard warning flasher lights located at the four corners of the car. These blinking lights would tell the police as well as other motorists that the car was being driven by someone who bypassed the Phystester and was either drunk or in an emergency situation. Motorists, therefore, could take caution. And the police could pull the car to the side of the road to determine if the driver should have a police escort to the hospital or be taken in and booked for driving while intoxicated.

Q. What if the car stalls in traffic? Would a person have to take the test to restart his car?

A. If the car stalls after the Phystester test has been passed, the car can be restarted merely by hitting the start button on the Phystester keyboard.

Q. Aren't there problems involved in turning your car over to a parking lot attendant?

A. Our engineers are considering two ways to handle the movement of the Phystester-equipped car by parking lot attendants:

1. A simple bypass switch could be built into the Phystester, as mentioned above. This would allow the attendant to start the car without taking the test, and would activate the four hazard warning flasher lights.

2. If the bypass switch is not built in for emergency situations, then a special "parking lot program" could be engineered into the Phystester's logic. It would work like this: Before shutting down the engine, the driver would push a specified button on the Phystester keyboard. Then the car could be restarted with the start button on the keyboard, but, the four hazard warning flasher lights would be activated, and the car could only be driven a mile before it would shut down again.

The Phystester also can be programmed with a numerical combination lock that is tied to the car's ignition system, thereby eliminating the ignition key. When a person is ready to start his car, he first punches in the secret five-digit combination. This unlocks the ignition system. Then he must pass the five-digit number recognition and response test. Then he can start the car.

Besides being an excellent method of preventing a drunk, sick, or emotionally disturbed person from driving a car or truck, the Phystester also could be installed on aircraft, boats, and expensive or dangerous machinery.

Something of Value In Added Tax

America is engaged in a prolonged, expensive and seemingly endless war. This war is being fought thousands of miles away, and a ruthless and monolithic enemy is winning. Our very survival is challenged in a conflict from which we cannot honorably or sensibly withdraw. Even so, we refuse to meet the challenge. We fight with old and outmoded weapons and methods. Up to now we have refused to use the one weapon that gives hope of success.

Now, before someone sends for the men in the white coats, let's define terms. The "war" is the trade war. The "ruthless and monolithic enemy" are the European Common Market countries and Japan. The "one weapon" is the value added tax.

The value added tax is basically a national sales tax imposed upon all transfers up to but not including the final retail sale. Credit is given at all times for the tax heretofore paid. The emotional effect of the tax on ultimate consumers is subliminal, since on the manufacturing and distributing level, it is clearly a separately stated tax with a credit given for tax previously paid, while at the very moment it hits the retail level, the tax becomes a hdden part of the cost. Perhaps the most mportant feature of the value added tax is that any property exported is exempt from that tax, and any tax theretofore paid is refunded or credited. Imports, on the other hand, are subject to the value added tax at the time of the importation.

The value added tax is generally accompanied by a somewhat similar but lower tax on the performance of services.

The administration is said to be seriously considering the recommendation of a 2 per cent or 3 per cent value added tax. This doesn't sound like a good deal, but is, in terms of actual money receipts. Like all taxes, the value added tax would grow, once the principal was accepted. Rates in countries now using the tax are, by comparison, high. France, for example, taxes at the rate of about 25 per cent. While in the United States, some 70 per cent or more of our federal tax collections come from income taxes, in the common market countries the value added tax and performance of services tax form by far the largest source of revenue.

The present comparative tax structures of the U.S. and those nations using the value added concept directly advantage our competitors. Because their retained profit percentages after taxes are greater, they can sell more cheaply. Unless this nation has some strange longing to leave the international market place, adoption of the value added tax should be most attractive.

Some reject the value added tax as a regressive tax (one that squeezes those least able to pay). Their argument is correct when you compare it with the heavily progressive (soak those who have it) income tax.

But this argument presupposes reduction of the income tax as a result of the new imposition. However, if the value added tax is substituted for the even more regressive property tax the opposite holds true. According to figures from the Population Division of the U.S. Census Bureau, the property tax, and not the sales tax is the most regressive of all taxes. It is also our least popular tax. The value added tax may be the only practical way (through revenue sharing and subventions) to effectively reduce the burden on the homeowner.

Most Airlines Interviewing

Trend Changes: Stewardess Jobs

By GEORGE GOLDING

For the first time in more than a year, United Air Lines is hiring new stewardess candidates and new steward candidates as well.

A long trend of letting people go, of furloughing surplus help, has apparently begun to change (slightly) in the airline business.

Other airlines are also hiring. PSA has scheduled February interviews in San Francisco with girls who have applied. PSA starts new classes every three months in San Diego.

Western is interviewing at San Francisco International and Pan American has been interviewing. Air California is accepting applications, and American's interviewes was in the Bay Area recently.

Delta's Gene Hyde explains "that is one area, due to turnover, where we do a limited amount of hiring on a continuous basis." Delta has monthly classes in Atlanta, accepts applications from anywhere and flies its candidates to Atlanta for interviews.

In a pre-departure orientation, United invited its newest crop of hopefuls to the big Maintenance Base at San Francisco International Airport.

They came from Fresno and Modesto and Sacramento to pick up instructions on how to get to the company's training center in Chicago and what to expect when they get there.

A dozen girls, two of them black and two who had been on the waiting list for more than a year, sat on straight chairs and listened to employment manager John Russell and employment representative Ben Fredericks.

They chatted with uniformed stewardess Amanda Allen, about the training center in Chicago.

"You'll be getting lots more individualized training than we got," said Miss Allen. She said the one-time formal training program had been modified to allow girls to proceed through at their own paces.

The course is scheduled for four weeks, during which time their expenses are paid but they are not.

On graduation, they are "on the payroll," and are provided with a $300 set of uniforms which they will pay for out of their bi-monthly paychecks.

"Will we have time to use the swimming pool?" asked Debbie Martin, a Santa Clara brunette due to start classes February 2.

Amanda said they would if they liked. She said the training school schedules "about 50 per cent of your time" and leaves 50 per cent open for catch-up work or recreation.

Gail Adolfo of Sacramento, ary 2 and must leave California next Monday, asked what is contained in the $300 uniform set.

Janet Hill of San Francisco, whose classes start February 16, asked if boots were allowed. She was told they are.

Donna Belmont, Oakland, class of February 2, asked what she'd find in her dormitory room in Chicago and Susan Krieg (Sanger, February 23) inquired about bidding procedures for job assignments after graduation.

They were told how to get their tickets to Chicago, out of San Jose, San Francisco or Sacramento, how much baggage they can take along and what they should leave behind (cars, big wardrobes).

One girl asked about "jumping into a little deflated life-raft about this big," during survival training and another asked how to dress for survival classes.

"Informal," said Amanda, "that is one place where they encourage informality."

After training, they will be sent to "domiciles" at San Francisco, New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Seattle, Honolulu, Newark, Washington or Denver and the company will pay their way and ship 300 pounds of their belongings free.

And later, when new uniform styles come in, the company will provide those without cost to the girls.

BEING HIRED as stewardesses, the first 'new hires' in months, these girls listen to veteran.

NEW FACILITY — Attending groundbreaking for Stewart Chevrolet Company in Daly City were, left to right, Hank Rampelt and Forrest Cain, assistant zone managers, Chevrolet Motor Division; Dave Herman, manager, Motors Holding Corporation; Joseph Montalbano, Stewart Chevrolet; William Woodin, zone manager, Chevrolet Division; Ray Ottoboni, Mayor of Colma.

New Millbrae Complex OK'd Over Protests

Millbrae City Council last week approved construction of a 95-unit apartment house on a hilltop where neighbors have stalled development since 1962.

Despite arguments of two of those neighbors, and two former mayors, the council voted 4-1 to agree with plans of Equity Funding Corporation to build the rambling three-story structure at Vallejo Drive and Frontera Way.

Neighbors Dean Elchinoff and Lewis Grasberger, who helped win the battle against construction of three nine-story Skyline Towers on the property nearly 10 years ago, protested the new lower buildings.

The apartments, they said, would interfere with natural drainage of the slopes and increase the possibility of landslides.

Although the Equity Funding plan was only before the Council for consideration of its architectural and landscaping, Mayor James O'Connor allowed the debate. He said drainage and landslides were properly part of a landscaping discussion.

Opposition statements came from Grasberger, an ex-Mayor, from Elchinoff, from Council candidate Barney Spera, and City Treasurer candidate Charles Yetters, and from new attorney James Himmel. They asked the Council to uphold Dean Elchinoff's appeal against a Planning Commission decision which had also approved the apartments.

Elchinoff and Himmel pleaded with the council to restore, to any agreement, an earlier version of wording in a liability clause.

James Matthews, attorney for the builders, said the earlier phrasing would have committed the builder to admit future liability to any and all possible catastrophes, "including acts of God," and that it was unliveable.

After more than two hours of debate, Councilman Arthur Lepore offered a motion to uphold Elchinoff's appeal. His motion died for a lack of a second.

Councilman Bernard Esser offered a motion to deny the appeal, which passed 4-1. He then porposed a second motion, to authorize the agreement between the developer and the city. That motion was also approved 4-1.

Green Belt Will Protect Pedro Creek

A "Green Belt" plan for protecting San Pedro Creek in Pacifica is being formulated by a group calling themselves the Pacifica Creek Protection Committee.

City officials have given their support to the effort and authorized the planning commission and parks, beach and recreation staffs to work with the committee.

The request for support toward preservation of San Pedro Creek came in a letter signed by six persons; Elden Dellanina, chairman, Gus Bosel Jr., Tim Durkin, Patricia Smith, William J. Bassett and Mrs. Janet Wherry of Half Moon Bay.

It was pointed out that San Pedro Creek is a wild steelhead trout stream where steelhead actively spawn and the small fish remain all summer, making the creek the only urban stream of its kind in the Bay Area.

Membership of the committee represents mostly Ecology Action of Pacifica, Inc., creekside residents, Terra Nova's Conservation Club and the faculty of both Oceana and Terra Nova's science departments.

According to the committee letter, there are still sizeable stretches of yet undeveloped land along San Pedro Creek—areas especially vital in the summer to young steelhead.

Vending Bandit

It would appear there's a vending machine bandit loose in South San Francisco.

During the early morning hours Wednesday both the Brentwood Bowl, 130 Northwood Drive, and the Boys Club, 201 West Orange Avenue, were broken into and vending machines pried open.

In addition, some time between Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, the Orange Park Recreation Center Building was broken into and vending machines there pried open.

Superior Court Hearings Set

Four different cases in South San Francisco's Municipal Court have been held over for further proceedings at Superior Court in Redwood City.

The two men arrested in connection with the January 26 wild chase and shooting incident involving police from Burlingame to San Francisco are scheduled to appear February 24.

William Wallace Stabler, 39, and Hector Fregoso Angulo, 35, were booked by South San Francisco police, who also took into evidence a military-type carbine and two revolvers. The men were charged with assault with intent to commit murder. No one was seriously injured in the shooting.

Also bound over were three young men arrested by South San Francisco police and charged with the robbery of a small food market.

They are Gary Allen Shepherd, 22, Ailvas Cervantes, 20, and Juan Hernandez, 20. They are scheduled to appear in Redwood City Court on February 24.

The third case involved Jack Emil Heller, 30, arrested by San Bruno police back in November of last year. Heller, who is scheduled to appear February 29, was booked on charges of forgery of a sales document and a forgery of a state seal on a driver's license.

Heller is suspected of being part of a state-wide fradulent car-purchase ring.

The other case involves Alan Carl Coppola, 24, who was one of three young men arrested by San Bruno police and charged with burglary with the aid of walkie-talkies.

Already bound over to Superior Court on that case were Jack J. Livermore, 18 and Craig Steven Link, 19. All three were scheduled to be heard this week.

Fire Hits Coast Home

A four-year-old girl playing with matches is the suspected cause of a Pacifica house fire Wednesday morning.

Firemen said they were called to the home of Ronald D. Miller, 304 Firecrest Drive, at about 9:23 a.m. to find a second floor bedroom and hall totally involved in flames.

According to officials Miller said he was in the master bedroom and smelled smoke. He went in to another bedroom to find his daughter standing beside a bed and bedding on fire on the floor.

Attempts by Miller to both smother and put the blaze out with water from a nearby bedroom was unsuccessful, officials said.

Damage is estimated to reach up to $4,000, a spokesman said.

Burglarized

South San Francisco resident William Miles reported to police that his home was burglarized with an estimated loss of $1,000 while he was at work yesterday afternoon.

Archbishop Denounces Pacifica Ex-Priest

By FRANK LaPIERRE

Without actually naming him, Archbishop Joseph T. McGucken has denounced a Pacifica priest who was excommunicated almost a year ago when it was learned he was married and the father of a then six-year-old son.

In a front page story appearing in the latest issue of The Monitor newspaper, official organ of the Archdiocese, the Roman Catholic prelate made it clear he was talking about Robert Duryea, former parish priest of St. Peter's church in Pacifica.

The Times learned of Father Duryea's marriage to a San Jose nurse and his "secret" second life, and was the first newspaper to bring the issue to light, last April.

Within 24 hours Archbishop McGucken ordered Duryea excommunicated from the church, retroactive to 1965.

What prompted the usually silent prelate to revive the matter months after Duryea was ousted is unknown.

However, some officials in church circles believe it is the recent surge of newspaper and magazine articles being published by Duryea, giving his views on celibacy and why he decided to marry while still a priest.

Archbishop McGucken in his article cited the sacred law of celibacy which all priests voluntarily vow to abide by when they enter the priesthood. These laws must not be broken by a priest, the prelate said.

"We cannot in any way or under any pretext condone or justify the actions of a priest who violates the solemn obligation of chastity which he has freely accepted; who attempts a 'marriage' which he knows to be invalid in the eyes of the church; who thereby incurs ipso facto the censure of excommunication," the Archbishop wrote.

And while the law of Christian love and understanding dictates forgiveness of a repentant sinner it also demands that "we condemn whatever is sinful lest others be led astray."

What has ired Archbishop McGucken, it is believed by those close to the prelate, is the continual attempts by Duryea to gather support for his stand on celibacy, rather than being repentant.

At the time the matter was first brought to the attention of the Archdiocese, the Archbishop offered to assist Duryea in being relieved of his obligations through proper channels.

Duryea refused, a spokesman said.

There was little doubt as to whom the prelate was referring to in his recent article when he mentioned a priest "who . . . for years continued to pose as a priest in good standing while sacrilegiously offering the eucharist and administering the sacraments."

When, last April, it was first announced Duryea was married and the father of a young son, Archbishop McGucken said he felt sympathy and sorrow for him.

"Our hearts feel sympathy for a man — any man — who finds the burdens of his commitments are beyond his strength," the prelate said.

"The church is a tender and loving mother to those who sincerely and humbly ask to be freed from obligations they find too difficult to sustain, but she cannot support, in the exercise of priestly ministry those who have chosen a way of life contrary to the commitment they have made," the prelate wrote.

Garage Sales Limited In Pacifica

Garage sales in Pacifica are being limited to two a year and must not last for more than three days.

Council members last week introduced an ordinance to this effect, and that also distinguished between garage and rummage sales.

A garage sale, according to the ordinance, is a sale of merchandise by an individual or group for profit.

Rummage sale pertains to those sales by a non-profit organization in which proceeds are used in a community service, youth activity and the like.

The ordinance also stipulates that persons conducting garage sales comply with all applicable state laws and regulations, including state franchise tax board regulations requiring sales permits.

In the garage sale, merchandise must be second-hand items that have been owned by the seller for at least six months, except in the case of the seller leaving the community.

Before a garage sale can be conducted applications for a permit must be made in writing to the city zoning administrator describing the type of material to be sold, the names of the owners, the location, date of sale and listing any material owned less than six months that is offered for sale. There is no fee for the permit.

Garage sales may be advertised on the property with only one sign, not exceeding six square feet and posted not more than seven days prior to the sale. It must be removed within 24 hours after the sale is over.

As to rummage sales, a permit also is necessary. It will show basically the same information and must be displayed at the site of the sale.

In both cases, sales can not be conducted on sidewalks, alleys, streets or other public ways.

OFF THE ROAD — Highway Engineers are shown here on what appears to be an empty stretch of beach near Half Moon Bay collecting mole crabs and beach hoppers as part of the Division of Highways ecology for engineers course. From left to right are Jerry O'Shea, assistant district engineer, Bob Sieker, special projects engineer, and Ray Porterfield, district engineer.

RARE MONTARA MOUNTAIN MANZANITA? — No, just a weed, explains Garland Hagen to his fellow highway engineers Bob Robbins, P. B. Janzen and George Samoulides — the latter his partner in the special air and noise pollution control unit with State Division of Highways, District Four office, serving the nine Bay area counties. The team, one of five in the ecology class supplied at highway engineers' request by the East Bay Regional Parks naturalists, was on assignment to mark out a ten-foot square area and identify all living things therein.

On Road to Ecology

State Highway Engineers Wade In

Engineers studying under naturalists — right out in the field where the freeways they are designing will run — is the latest trend in the new wave of environmentalism and what makes it news is that the highway engineers asked for it.

One University of California Extension course exposure to an ecologist by one engineer led to a pilot course for a group at the State Division of Highway District Four Office, serving the nine Bay Area counties a division spokesman said.

The new interaction proved to be popular, and effective, for both engineers and ecologists so now the Eco-school is in full swing with two more groups of 20 in the field and still more on the way, he added.

In a course of nine not-so-easy lessons given by the East Bay Regional Park District last fall, the men waded out into the mud flats of the Bay and climbed Montara Mountain to study, in a close-up view, not only the "birds and the bees" but, as one man put it, "the bugs and the buzzards."

Chosen mostly from Highway Design sections but with Planning, Landscape, and right-of-way units represented, the group attended each 3-hour class in the field, not only in mud flats and mountains, but in Bay salt-marsh, ocean tidepools, ocean and bay beach, and inland hills.

Uniform of the day included hip boots, magnifying glass, and binoculars, and since the course was held during October and November, each participant was required to wear "warm socks, washable pants, and an old shirt," according to instructions from Ron Russo, the teacher throughout the 3-month course.

Russo, a naturalist employed by East Bay Parks for the past 5 years is now resident naturalist at Tilden Park Nature Study area, and is a lifetime conservationist who obtained his B.S. in Parks Administration from Sacramento State College.

"I was positively delighted with the beginning of awareness among the course participants," was the comment of Clare Dedrick, Executive Director of the Peninsula Conservation Center, a well-qualified defender of the environment with a Doctorate in Biology from Stanford.

Her remark came in the critique that followed the course where participants faced a panel of experts from Federal environmental protection agencies.

The engineers too were enthusiastic.

"It turned most of us on," landscape architect Bill LaMon sad. "We know a lot more than before and realize how little we know." His comment echoed that of others who were amazed at "how much there is to it."

Course content included new concepts like Auto-ecology (organization of individual species) and Synecology (groups of organisms associated as a unit).

Participants learned also that Ecology could be divided along various lines of study: by habitat — marine, fresh water and terrestial, by levels I species, population, community and ecosystem, and by taxonomic lines, Plant, Animal, Microbial, Insect, Vertebrate and last, but lately somewhat the least, Human Ecology.

Since the pilot project was so well received, the two new groups are being watched by highway executives for possible use statewide.

Ann Hansen, senior highway engineer in charge of Design Coordination, who recognized a need and organized the course, is so enthused with the results, that she has two more courses under way. She is preparing a presentation on its effectiveness for State Highway officials in Sacramento.

Students involved in this pilot course now want to gain more insight into other subjects covered by similar community problems.

These classes should be successful and highly relevant to highway building in the future according to a deputy district highway engineer says "my view of the rules and restrictions in this area is that they will increase, and we'll have a job keeping up with them."

The best thing to come out of these classes one spokesman said, is the understanding dialogue between engineers and ecologists.

"Considering where we were and where we are we did get some place. The main thing this course did was work on sensitivity. When they finished our men had an awareness that many never had before."

Jet Airliner Recalled After Bomb Hoax

An American Airlines four-engine jet was called back to San Francisco International Airport Thursday afternoon when a man telephoned a bomb threat to a new San Carlos travel agency.

No bomb was found aboard the aircraft, which was reloaded with its 81 passengers and seven crew members, and took off for Phoenix three hours late.

Flight 538 was "about 10 or 15 minutes out of San Francisco," an American Airlines spokesman said on Friday, "when the bomb threat was received. It was returned to San Francisco because that was the closest airport in California from which Operations Manager John Burns said the bomb threat was relayed to Americans reservations office after being received by San Carlos Travel, a company so new it is not listed in the American operates."

phone book.

Burns said this was the second false bomb threat against one of the company's planes within a week.

Passenger supervisor Del Miller said there have been eight bomb threats at the airport since Saturday.

Shore Dining At Nick's 3 Famous Restaurants

Hands-down favorites at The Papagayo Room, a colorful Mexican domain located at the shoreline of Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, are the Combination Plates and Cena Mexicana, a complete dinner with an entree choice of enchilada, taco, chile relleno or tamale. Runners-up are Carne Asada (broiled steak with green peppers and onions, served with a green enchilada and guacamole sauce and beans) and Enchiladas de cangrejo (tortillas filled with crab and served with a red sauce and cream) . . . Ceilings and walls are adorned with a wonderful melange of ship's hardware and marine trophies at The Moonraker, located on the second level of the same oceanfront building. Along with an exotic menu of continental specialties, a select menu of drinks includes "Top Sail Specials" that are festive delights. You might select a Scorpion (a concoction of rums, fruit juices, Brandy and gin, plus almonds) or a Navy Grog (a Moonraker secret blend of exotic fruit juices and rum) . . . Then there's everyone's favorite dining retreat — Nick's restaurant and lounge, where happy crowds gather for breakfast, lunch, dinner, and special banquets. A pleasurable meal is assured here, and prices are reasonable, including special children's portions.

SINGER-COMPOSER—Mel Torme, a multi-talented performer who does all his own musical arrangements, will open in the Fairmont's Venetian Room for a three-week engagement Thursday, February 24. Besides his enormous popularity as a singer, Mel is equally respected for his accomplishments with pen and composition paper. Currently appearing in the Venetian Room are The Mills Brothers.

Clark, Wyman, Pat Boone Harrah's Club Features

A double entertainment bill features Roy Clark, singer-guitarist, and singing sensation Karen Wyman in the Headliner Room at Harrah's Reno. Also on the program, with two shows nightly through March 1, is Tulara Lee. Coming to the Headliner Room: Sergio Franchi (March 2-15); Merle Haggard (March 16-29); Carroll O'Connor and Florence Henderson (March 30-April 12); and Eddy Arnold (April 13-26). . . . The Pat Boone Family Show will make its debut in the South Shore Room at Harrah's Tahoe for the weekend of February 25 through 27. Also on the bill is Comedian Foster Brooks. "Bottoms Up," a musical comedy with ad libs and timely blackouts, has been booked indefinitely in the South Shore Room each Monday through Thursday . . . There's a lot of entertainment action at the Airport Plaza Hotel in Millbrae these nights. A new band, Cleveland Jones, is playing to big dance crowds in the spacious lounge, and there's standing room only for a medley of top Broadway hits in the upstairs ballroom on weekends.

Entertainment The Nevada Way

"Entertainment the Nevada Way" is the reason behind most trips to South Lake Tahoe, and the easiest way to reach these destinations (besides "chaining up" midway) is by Greyhound Bus. So why not give Park Avenue Tours a call and let them plan your entire trip. Your stay can last from eight hours to two days, and you receive a variety of special bonuses and refunds . . . With the recent opening of Dick Vartanian and his group, live music is now a regular enticement on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights at the Exposition Fish Grotto, at Fisherman's Wharf. Response to the new entertainment program by the Grotto's many regulars has been overwhelming . . . Famous for its delicate Italian dishes, The Leaning Tower in South San Francisco also lists many broiler items on the extensive menu. A real favorite here is a Giant New York Steak, which is a natural attraction during the Baseball season . . . Dinner wines from the carafe are a hot new item at Lew Lehr's Steak House, in San Francisco's Marina district. These famous label red and white wines would be far more expensive if served in the bottle. By offering these same wines in individual one-half liter and full liter carafes, Lehr is able to buy in larger quantities, and pass the savings along to his appreciative patrons.

Red Fox Lounge Of Belmont

Fire and Earth is the versatile five-piece band playing the dance sounds in the plush Red Fox Lounge, Tuesdays through Saturdays, at Holiday Inn, Belmont. The group includes top Bay Area musicians, including Coke Escovedo, formerly with Santana. Featured vocalist is Gail Muribus, a popular songstress who has appeared at the Purple Onion and Hungry i in San Francisco . . . Deejay's, a north Belmont nitery currently showcasing a rock band called Afterglow, also provides its patrons with "Happy Hours" every evening from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m., with cocktails priced at 50 cents . . . West is the group supplying the musical strains on Friday and Saturday nights at The Band Stand in Redwood City. The band doubles back for the club's early morning breakfast shows, which are pulling big crowds . . . The Putter, Burlingame Plaza, has a reputation of featuring the best musical talent available, and Sound Advice, the band currently marqueed here Tuesday through Saturday nights, is a perfect example of this policy. To see and hear them is to truly appreciate their sounds.

ANNIVERSARY PARTY — Richard Alldred (left), general manager of Stickney's, and Restaurateur Adrian "Red" Stickney prepare to cut the anniversary cake which was served to his long-time employees.

It's Margie Brandon From "Blues To The Blahs"

An evening with Margie Brandon is a sure-cure for anything from the "Blues to the Blahs." Miss Brandon's performance is full of life and vitality and her pretty smile is enough to bring a little sunshine into a dull day. Margie's nimble fingers grace the keyboard at Clancy's giant organ bar in downtown San Francisco. . . . The Trio Orfeo provides the sensuous sounds for the belly dancers who dance up a storm nightly at The Greek Taverna in North Beach. And as you know, North Beach is the heart of where all the action is at. . . . Don't forget to put this entertainment date on your calendar: The performance of Duke Ellington and his Orchestra will be held in the men's gym of San Jose College Wednesday, February 23. You'll see master musicians at work . . . The National Cherry Queen, Miss Trudy Annette Lindsay, recently enjoyed the plush hospitalities of the San Francisco Hilton Inn at the International Airport. Miss Linday, here from Traverse City, Mich., the nation's cherry capital, with her advisor, Mrs. J. Ray Valade, enjoyed the music of pianist Maurice Anger at the elegant Terrace Room.

Famous Name Ringside Finocchio's

Ringsiders at Finocchio's twice in a week, Elaine Stritch and a group of actors from "Company" were especially intrigued by the wonderful comedy of Jackie Phillips and Elton Paris, and as the quips of Lucien, the "Male Sophie Tucker." There is outstanding costuming, choreography and production numbers in the new revue which continues to attract countless out-of-towners as well as localities . . . For pizzas, we highly recommend Enrico Romano's Italian restaurant, located in picturesque Rockaway Beach, Pacifica. These mouth-watering delicacies come topped with all the wonderful ingredients you expect to find on your pizza. In fact, Romano's pizzas seem to come equipped with everything with hydramatic drive. . . . Phil Lehr, creative owner-host of the Steakery in downtown San Francisco, has concocted a delicious new cocktail that clicked instantly with discerning patrons in the famed Wellington Room. It's the Danish Blue Martini. That intriguing name was prompted by the luscious olive used in the cocktail — a huge California ripe olive stuffed with Danish Blue Cheese. Phil says it's so popular, it has already completely replaced the green stuffed olive usually served with martinis at the Steakery.

Stop In and Say "Hi" To Hy When In Las Vegas

Had the recent pleasure of visiting with my good friend of many years, Hy Porter, who headquarters at the Las Vegas Flamingo Hotel in an executive capacity. Hy, at one time, was night club editor of the former San Francisco News, and when he left for bigger fields Yours Truly took over his typewriter. In fact, I am still using it. The Flamingo Hotel is one of Nevada's ultra-swank stops, with big name entertainment and, of course, all the other fun attractions. Next time you're visiting the Las Vegas Strip, stop in and say "Hi" to Hy . . . A. Sabella's is an elaborate setting from which to view the throngs surging in the action around Fisherman's Wharf. Many of the recipes here are based on dishes concocted by host-owner Lucian Sabella. Along with a wine list that includes imported and domestic labels, A. Sabella's menu offers a variety of seafood and fish, augmented with steaks and chops . . . Even the spirits are authentically English at the elegant Lord Fletcher Inn in Atherton. The capable crew of plankmen proudly pour London's famous Red Barrel Ale and the entire roster of Pims Cups.

Chef Frederic Now In Charge

Frederic Haas, well known for his culinary artistry, is now in charge of the kitchen at the Half Moon Bay Inn. Chef Haas, who has worked at several of the best hotels and restaurants in Europe, has completely redesigned the Inn's luncheon and dinner menus. He has won several international cooking awards, and can be remembered locally for his lengthy stint at the Little Sweden in San Francisco . . . Will Pate, a gifted young folksinger, is entertaining every Thursday night in the lounge of Chuck's Steak House. His soft, melodic style is reminiscent of the folk-rock era that has made such a tremendous impact on today's popular music. Pate writes and composes all his own material, and has nearly 100 original songs in his repertoire . . . One of the best luncheons to be ordered is now a regular attraction at the new North China Inn in downtown Burlingame. The daily buffet lunches feature seven different items. There is also a fine selection of fine wines and imported beer . . . Ken Gilley, the "prince" of San Mateo's Prince of Wales, is now thinking of expansion. He is seriously considering the idea of converting the upstairs loft of his authentic English pub into a discotheque.

STEADY JOB — What has to be some sort of a record, Sam Ho has been on the Villa Chartier's payroll for over 30 years. According to his congenial employer, Emerson Murfee, Sam, an expert mixologist, has had just two days sick leave (vacations excepted) all during that time.

Award-Winning Restaurant

Chefs at Scotty Campbell's have a truly delicate touch with Choice Cut Sirloin and Scampi (deep water shrimp) sauteed in wine and butter. This special dish is served with Idaho baked or stuffed potato, crisp salad and beverage. You really should try it. Whatever your entree choice, do save space for dessert. This award-winning Redwood City restaurant takes real pride in its cheese pie served with brandied cherries. Ask for Maerd Eip . . . Appetites are appeased by the efforts of a large staff of expert chefs at Vince's Italian and Seafood restaurant. A more all-encompassing seafood menu would be difficult to find. If you're undecided as what to order, just close your eyes and point at the menu. You may light on such a specialty as Joe's Special (spinach, eggs, ground beef) . . . Dinner at The Down Under in San Francisco starts with a salad from the Salad Bar (self-service)—tossed green salad, garnish, choice of dressing. The repertoire of entree includes steaks, fish, fowl all superbly prepared and nicely presented. The dessert list suggests ice cream, cheese cake, and pecan pie.

Friday Nights Big At Mission Bruno's

Nothing hops up the Friday night blues as a visit to Bruno's in the Mission. That's the night Eddie Plute takes over at the key-board and keeps the piano bar hummin' with your favorite numbers. Eddie prides himself on very rarely, if ever, being stuck on requests, his repertoire dating back to the Gay '90 era. Give him a try but don't make any bets he won't come up with what you ask for . . . Leo Giorgetti, general manager of The Showboat restaurant in Burlingame, has announced the appointment of Bobby Ponzio as assistant manager. Ponzio comes to the Peninsula after three years experience with Scoma's, the last year of which he was manager of their Sausalito operation. Entertaining in the lounge for Wednesday through Sunday ballroom dancing is the Sal Vergara Quartet. . . Don't hesitate to bring the whole family to Sal Campagna's House of Troy restaurant in San Carlos — several child's plates are offered for the young set, as well as a distinguished menu of select dishes for the grown-ups. Prices to suit everyone's pocketbook . . . Doros in San Francisco is extremely popular with wine connosseurs. Doros boss, Don Dianda, stocks the finest and rarest wines from all over the world for his lunchers and diners.

New Southern's Chicken Dumplin's

Displaced southerners, for one reason or another, are abundant on the Peninsula, and sooner or later they pay a visit to the New Southern restaurant in South San Francisco. Besides finding a true "old southern" atmosphere, the food is the traditional fare found throughout the south. Southern Fried Chicken and Chicken n Dumplings are considered house specialties, with steaks and Italian dishes drawing their fair share of attention . . . A prime rib dinner for $2.95? Yes, and its a regular menu attraction seven days a week at Mills Square Restaurant, San Mateo. Served complete with salad, hot roll and even a glass of red wine, it's one of several daily specials appealing to big appetites . . .

Crestmoor Journalism Conclave

Crestmoor High School's journalism class, headed by Miss Leslie Lafayette, will host students from thirty-four high schools at a journalism conference Saturday, February 26.

The students have been very active in the past months with bake sales in order to raise funds for the conference, which will include talks by college representatives and informal sessions with journalists from all areas of the media.

The guests and journalism instructors will also attend a special luncheon at Russo's in San Bruno.

The day will begin with coffee and doughnuts at 9:30, followed by a general meeting in the Little Theatre, where students will have the opportunity to ask questions of college representatives. Principal George Kristovich will welcome the visitors.

From 10:30 to 12:30, the students will attend four sessions in which they will talk informally with guests from Bay Area newspapers, radio and television. Among the guests attending the conference are: Bob Peterson, reporter for the San Mateo Times; Ed Hart, President of HARTEL Productions and former KRON TV anchorman: Tom Campbell, disc jockey KLOK; Donna Starr, photographer at the San Mateo Times; Bob Steiner, Sports Information Director at the University of California; Larry Craig, cameraman at KRON-TV; Gary Tobin and Al Moss, sportswriters at the Chronicle; John Reidy, Director of Public information for the San Mateo Union High School District; Sam Goldman, Journalism Head at Skyline College; Dick Riley, Executive Producer at KRON-TV; Merle Ellis, Producer, HARTEL Proructions; Jack Bik, editor of the San Bruno Herald, and Joshua Eppinger of the San Franicsco Examiner. Other guests are also expected.

"We're hoping for a large turnout, especially from the local high schools," commented Miss Lafayette. "This should be a great opportunity for studenis who are seriously interested in pursuing a career in journalism to meet and talk with people who have successfully done so."

Youth Bureau Is Debated

Pacifica Councilman Stan Farber feeling out council members on the operation of that city's Youth Service Bureau, soon to lose its founding director, got a direct answer from Councilman Dan Modena.

"I don't want to see the city run it," said Modena. "That's out as far as I'm concerned. This is a field that needs professionalism, people from the county's probation department."

Modena said the operation should be taken over by the county and expanded to other cities.

Farber said he didn't think the present program in Pacifica "has begun to scratch the surface of juvenile delinquency prevention."

Mrs. Fassler To U.S. Post

Appointment of Supervisor Jean Fassler of Pacifica to a one-year term on the Environmental Quality Steering Committee of the National Association of County Officials has been announced by William J. Connor, association president.

Mrs. Fassler will attend her first meeting in Washington, D.C. Thursday through Saturday for discussions on environmental legislation presently before the Congress.

Youths Rob D.C. Station

Two youths held up the Valley Chevron service station on Bayshore Boulevard in Daly City about 3 a.m. on Thursday and fled with an undetermined amount of cash.

No one was hurt and no weapons were seen by the attendant on duty, police said.

The pair walked into the station, simulated handguns in their coat pockets and fled on foot after grabbing the money from a cash register, according to police.

Both suspects were described as "Oriental types," black hair, and between 19-20 years old. One of the men wore a U.S. Army field jacket and tennis shoes. His companion wore a black leather jacket and glasses.

Skyline Gets Mileage From Its Forwards

Literally hobbled by an assortment of ankle injuries, Skyline College nevertheless got as much mileage as possible from forwards Dale Conway and Chris Hansen Saturday night to upset visiting West Valley, 65-56, in a Camino Norte Conference basketball game.

Skyline's win put the Trojans in a third place tie with Valley at 8-4, three games behind co-leaders College of Marin and Contra Costa (11-1) with two left.

Conway started in place of Hansen in a case of who's ankle hurt less and carried the scoring burden early. The Conway-Reynolds-Wellemeyer front line effectively shut off the inside WV scoring with a shifting zone defense and only three of the 22 West Valley buckets came from the inside.

Paul Reynolds' rebounding and 15-point output sparked the front line attack but each individual had his moment in the victory. Hansen came in in the final six minutes with the Trojans up by just five and grabbed three straight defensive rebounds to re-generate the offense.

Mike Larios, with his mercurial passing (including a booming 80-footer to Pete Saco that actually put the game away with 58 seconds left) and Matt Kriletich's outside shooting kept the visitors at bay.

West Valley, with Archbishop Mitty graduate Rick Hile and Jim Smrekar doing the damage, often didn't even look inside the Skyline zone and were content to pop from the perimeter. Had not Hile and Smrekar been fairly hot the game wouldn't have been that close.

Junior Pads Win Crown

The Serra High Junior Varsity basketball game clinched its third West Catholic Athletic title in the last four years by beating visiting Mitty, 59-44, Friday.

The junior Pads, now 10-1 in WCAL play and 19-1 overall, were led by Joe Berriatua's 19 points and the strong inside work of Ron Jackson-and Tim Harnett.

NPL Cage Title Goes to Jeff

By JERRY LITTRELL

Jefferson High School won the 1972 North Peninsula League title Friday, a few days earlier than expected, thanks to an upset El Camino victory over Oceana High School, and all the pairings for the Shaughnessy Playoffs set for next weekend at Skyline Junior College are likewise settled.

The Indians clinched at least a tie for the title with an early evening 56-51 victory over Westmoor and two hours later the Camino Colts gave the championship outright to Jeff with a 40-38 win over secnd - place Oceana.

Jefferson and Westmoor will meet again Friday evening at 7:30 in the first round of the playoffs while South San Francisco and Oceana High Schools meet Saturday evening at 7. The final day's league action (today) will have little bearing on the seedings.

In other conference action last week Terra Nova ran by Half Moon Bay, 85-69, while South City upended Serramonte, 83-73.

The Indians and Westmoor played almost an identical game on Friday as the first meeting with a few minor script changes. Jeff bounced out to an early lead (as before), got it up to as many as 11 points (not quite as large a lead as before) and got guard Joe Randolph in foul trouble and finally out of the game (as before).

But this time the Indians had an adequate reserve in much-travelled transfer Jesse Byers who, although not scoring, got three full-court pass-assists and didn't hurt the Indians on defense (as had happened the first time around).

Harold Norman started for Jeff and combined with Ken Smith to control the rebounding. Unable to get more than one shot at a time most of the game the Rams waited until the final period before making a belated run at the victory. Westmoor closed to within three, 54-51, with 14 seconds left and had possession but a steal by Gary Lindsay and layin by Norman put the game away.

El Camino's long-sought-after victory over a first-division club became a reality in the slow down affair last night in Pacifica. Mark Spivey, scoring half the Colt total, led the way as Camino negated any co-championship hopes Oceana had entertained with the two-point upset.

Mike Freeland hit an 18-footer with 40 seconds left to give the Colts a 39-38 lead and Spivey added a free throw with five seconds remaining to fill out the totals. Oceana had five separate shots at the go-ahead bucket but couldn't connect in the last 30 seconds.

Staving off a determined offensive output by Todd Stevenson and Steve Dove, South City rallied in the final quarter for the win over Serramonte. Rhod Wallace scored eight points in the last period as the Warriors lost a 14-point lead and were actually tied at 62-all.

Dove and Stevenson combined for 51 points while Lynn Simmons led the Warriors with 19 points.

John Racanelli's 30-point output, 18 of which came in the final half, and the backup help of George Yaron, who scored 24 more, helped the Tigers overcome winless HMB. The visiting Cougars actually led 39-36 before Yaron and Racanelli went to work. Yaron's outside bombs ruined any HMB hopes for an upset although Pete Peterson did manage to get 17 points.

The North Peninsula League playoff picture has come into focus now as, as predicted, Jefferson, Westmoor, Oceana and South San Francisco High Schools seem due for post-season competition.

Three of those teams won in Wednesday's action solidifying their Shaughnessy Playoff spots as with two games left in NPL play the last two playoff teams, SSF and Westmoor, have a two-game lead on both Serramonte and Terra Nova, the only two teams with even a mathematical chance at making the playoffs.

Oceana registered the most impressive victory of the day with a 74-64 victory over Westmoor. South San Francisco needed an overtime but finally outlasted stubborn El Camino, 57-55, while Jefferson gained revenge over Terra Nova, 71-58, and Serramonte downed Half Moon Bay, 78-73.

The poised Sharks got their second win of the year over Westmoor and did it with a dazzling free throw shooting exhibition. After a very shaky start when they dropped behind 10-2, the Sharks began a methodical onslaught against the cold-shooting Rams that built up as much as a 13-point lead in the second half.

Oceana connected on 28 of 34 charity shots including 14 in the final period when Westmoor made a threat at the lead. When the Rams had closed to four, 68-64, Jim Ribera hit his third straight free throw, Rich Whitmore added another and Terry

Crestmoor Topples, But Capuchino Wins

When Bill Lewis set the MPL basketball scoring record for Aragon last year, he was a senior.

When Rod Williams broke it Saturday night for Hillsdale in the final game of the regular season, he was finishing his sophomore year.

Williams' 23 points in the 71-42 win over visiting Crestmoor gave him a 12-game total of 281, three more than Lewis' mark.

In other MPL season-enders Saturday night, Capuchino edged visiting Burlingame, 54-53 and Aragon came back to down host San Mateo, 60-55.

Aragon, Hillsdale, Capuchino and unbeaten Mills will go on to the playoffs Friday. For the rest, the season is history.

Most of the suspense for the Hillsdale crowd came in the last quarter. The Knights had opened the game by taking a 15-3 first quarter lead, and didn't have much trouble thereafter.

So it came down to the final eight minutes — and Williams was still short of the mark. The crowd chanted for him to get the ball.

And the Knights, who have a talent for getting Williams the ball without seeming to even look for him, obliged.

He got the points in the last minute and sat down. He'll be back in action Friday night at 8 when the Knights meet Aragon at Burlingame in the first playoff game.

Williams was high point man for the night (his total included 13 of 13 from the line). The Knights' Scott McWhirter had 17 and Crestmoor's Mark Rosekind netted 16.

Hillsdale finished the regular season tied with Aragon for second place at 8-4. Crestmoor finished fifth at 3-9; the Falcons were hit by illness and injury early, and never did get going.

For Aragon reserve cager Brian Tong, the last game was just the beginning.

Tong would have played this year, but broke his leg long jumping over the summer and sat out most of the season with a difficult recuperation.

Tong got into the San Mateo game, though, and made all the difference. Aragon had trailed most of the game. With 5:02 remaining Aragon center Tom Flavin tied itat 45-all. Then Tong broke it open.

The junior forward scored seven of Aragon's next nine points as the Dons moved out to a 54-47 lead. He took ridiculously difficult shots — turnaround jumpers under the basket, driving reverse layups and the like — but they went in.

San Mateo closed to within two in the late gong, 55-53, but the Dons' other forward, Jim Killin, cashed on a three-point play to stave off the Bearcat threat.

San Mateo had led at the end of the first quarter 13-11 and at the half, 26-24. The Bearcat zone bothered Aragon; none of the Dons except Killin were hitting from outside.

Flavin and Killin each had 18, but high point honors went to the Bearcats' Howard Trotter, with 21.

San Mateo finished in the MPL cellar at 2-10. But the Bearcats will have something to look forward to — most of the players are juniors. And the Bearcats, since Trotter joined the squad at midseason, have been playing better than last-place ball.

Cap coach Jimmy Johnson started an all-senior lineup against Burlingame, but Rob Silver wasn't on it.

Silver had been felled by a bad ankle injury the night before . . . and since Silver is the Mustangs' prime offensive threat for the upcoming playoffs, a lot of anxious people awaited the X-ray reports.

They were negative — the hairline fracture everybody expected didn't show up. But Silver has trouble walking. The ankle is badly swollen, and is causing pain. Johnson doesn't know whether Silver will be available for Friday night's playoff tilt with Mills at Hillsdale . . . right now, it's touch and go.

Since Cap started seniors, the normal guard combination of Peter Santora and Mike Galvin stayed on the bench. Cap opened in a zone which bothered Burlingame not a whit. The Panthers moved to a quick 7-0 lead and it was 3½ minutes before Cap got a bucket.

Burlingame led, 16-11, at the quarter. Doc Scheppler and Phil Williamson kept the Panthers hot. Then Johnson inserted Galvin and Santora in the lineup, and things started going the other way — Cap took a 29-28 halftime lead.

The third quarter was back and forth; Cap finished on top, 46-45. Burlingame took the lead, 53-52, with three minutes left and then Cap stalled for two minutes. John Bomba took a shot and missed.

Burlingame brought the ball down but Santora stole it. Cap then stalled for the last shot. Bomba took another 20-footer with 12 seconds left and canned this one. Burlingame tried a half-court shot at the end and lost the chance for a rebound in the scuffle that ensued . . . no foul was called.

Friday would have been a perfect sweep for the forgotten teams in the Mid-Peninsula League basketball race if Mills High hadn't been around to win its 22nd straight game, 71-61 over host Capuchino.

As it was, the bottom two teams in the standings came up with solid wins as San Mateo beat Burlingame, 46-45, and Crestmoor came down from San Bruno to surprise second-place Aragon, 63-59.

In West Catholic Athletic League action last night, Serra lost to visiting Archbishop Mitty, 68-57.

Mills and Cap might have had quite a game if Cap star Rob Silver hadn't turned his ankle badly at the end of the first quarter. Cap held a 13-12 first quarter lead.

Silver's ankle looked like it belonged in a hangar at Moffett Field. He could be a doubtful starter when the two teams tangle again in the opening round of the playoffs next Friday.

Even after losing Silver's scoring and rebounding skills, Cap stayed fairly close through the first half, as coach Jimmy Johnson kept the troops fresh with replacements. Mills took a 36-31 halftime lead.

But Cap's other frontliners, center Steve Turner and forward John Bomba, got into foul trouble. Mills, with the tallest front line in the league, began to work its inside game. Center Tom MacKenzie was in foul trouble, but Don Weaver and Bruce Deliante kept the Vikings out of trouble in the second half.

Cap hung in, but couldn't get closer then five. Meanwhile Mills was operating with a tremendous rebounding advantage, finishing ahead in that statistic, 41-24.

The Aragon-Crestmoor affair resembled an all-star pro wrestling match. Tag teams. There were a few fouls — by the third quarter everyone was walking on eggshells.

Crestmoor opened with its hottest shooting half of the season. And the whole Falcon team went to the boards against Aragon's 6-8' center, Tom Flavin. The Falcons screened out well and worked their way to a 34-27 halftime lead.

Crestmoor's Mark Rosekind had gotten three quick fouls guarding the dangerous Flavin, but was effective nevertheless. Meanwhile Aragon forward Tim Barnard joined the MPL injury brigade, as he sprained his ankle in the second quarter.

Crestmoor went into a 2-3 zone and stayed there the rest of the game. The Falcons still held a 48-43 lead at the end of the third quarter, and in the fourth the two teams just traded buckets. Crestmoor went into a semi-effective stall with two minutes left to go and got some insurance on a follow shot by Bill Shaughnessy, which made the score 61-54 with time running out. Aragon had already cinched a playoff spot.

Burlingame pulled out a quick 11-3 lead over the visiting Bearcats, and nearly had a 10-point halftime bulge until San Mateo ran off a few quick layups, mostly by Wayne Eitel, that made it 17-15 Burlingame at the half.

"Both teams played well," said Burlingame coach Frank Bettendorf. "But San Mateo controlled the tempo of the game very well. They rebounded extremely well as a team."

Burlingame had one final last-ditch shot. San Mateo leading 46-45, missed a foul shot. Burlingame got the rebound with five seconds left and no time outs. The Panthers got the ball as far as they could and gave it to Doc Scheppler for a desperation 55-footer, but it bounced off the front rim.

Serra was down 38-30 at the half, but tied Mitty 46-all going into the fourth quarter. But the Pads lost the game at the free throw line as the visiting Monarchs hit 16 of 18 charity shots. Mitty outscored the Pads 22-11 in that quarter. Senior forward Joe Daly led Padre scorers with 14. Mike Healy had 12 and center Vince Tammaro had 10.

All-Ireland Team Wins In Soccer

Daly City boys' soccer league results were announced today.

They follow.

UNDER EIGHT YEARS OLD

All Ireland 1—Westlakers 66ers 0

This game was an evenly played contest as both teams continue to show great improvement. During the first half the Westlakers attacked strongly with Jeff Glosser showing great ball control as he eluded the defenders. But his passes found his fellow forwards hanging back.

In the second half, after center forward Danny Lewbin had just missed a great chance to put the Westlakers ahead, All Ireland beat goalie Jason Bruni while his view was blocked by his defenders. Jason Bruni, as always, made his excellent diving saves and his forward kicks are becoming more effective. Pint-sized Paul Abrahamsohn at centerhalf was a tiger on defense managing to break up attacks with his great timing. Assisting Abrahamsohn were Fullbacks Kurt Ricci and Joe Condon. Halfbacks Frank Willsey and Tommy Moorehead continued to improve his already fine play.

UNDER 10 YEARS OLD

Westlakers "B" 0—Saints 0

This was a deceiving score as the Westlakers spent most of the game in front of the Saints' goal. The Westlakers did manage to score a goal, but it was called back because of offsides. Although the second half was played in the mud, the play was still outstanding. Mike Amerio, Rick Glosser, Curt Lee, and Jeff Gould continue to be fine passing forwards. Marc Rosetti assisted their play by playing outstanding soccer from his halfback position. Curt Lee and Jeff Gould continue to improve their speed and ball control and with these two fine players, the Westlakers "B" are certain to be title contenders.

UNDER 12 YEARS OLD

Westlakers 1—Olympic Club 1

The Olympic Club scored the game's first goal on a penalty kick, but the Westlakers playing with only 10 men throughout the game came back on a goal by Keith Rucker. The Westlakers showed strong team play but need to finish their combinations with decisive shots at goal. Right-winger Quiros contines to play outstanding soccer and fullbacks Lee and Marroquin held the opposing forwards well in check.

UNDER 14 YEARS OLD

Westlakers 0—S.P. United 0

The Westlakers are much improved, especially on defense where fullbacks Jim Flaherty and Harold Weiner along with halfback Bill Schwarz constantly broke up S. P. United's attacks, Harold Weiner's slowness still hamprs the Westlakers, but he continues to improve with every game. The Westlakers constantly threatened to score, but Speedy Ralph Joshua at right wing couldn't put the ball in the net.

49ers Do Well; Raiders Flub?

If one is to believe The Sporting News, the 49ers came up with a relatively excellent college draft, while the Raiders might have flubbed it.

Just before the NFL made its draft picks, The Sporting News, apparently with the help of pro scouts, published a rating system on all of the potential draftees (1.0 — immediate pro starter; 2.0 — will make squad; 3.0 — prospect; 4.0 — doubtful), and while neither the 49ers nor the Raiders came up with any one of what were considered seven blue-chip picks defensive end Walt Patulski, Notre Dame; corner-back Willie Buchanon, San Diego State; tight end Riley Odoms, Houston; linebacker Willie Hall, USC; offensive tackle Lionel Antoine, Southern Illinois; safety Tommy Casanova, LSU; running back-wide receiver Bobby Moore, Oregon), the 49ers did seem to fare well, as follows:

1. Terry Beasley, 5-11, 185, Auburn All-American wide receiver (the recipient of most of the completions of Heisman Trophy winner Pat Sullivan) who snarred 161 passes in his three year varsity career, was given a 1.5 rating just behind Moore, making him, in effect, the second most sought-after wide receiver in the scouts' book. Beasley is rated as having excellent hands and quickness with 4.5 speed for the 40 yard dash.

2-A. Ralph McGill 5-11, 185, of Tulsa, listed as a corner back by the 49ers but rated as a 2.0 by The Sporting News as a safety, which, theoretically, ranked him as among the four best safety prospects in the country. With his 4.5 speed, McGill was also rated by TSN as one of the most dangerous punt and kickoff return men in the country.

2-B. Jean Barrett, a 6-6, 260 pound offensive tackle from Tulsa was one of two 4934 draftees not rated. But he is only 20 and considered by the 49ers as a real sleeper, not yet having fully developed anywhere near his real potential.

3. Allan (Jubile) Dunbar, 6-0, 205-pound, a wide receiver from Southern U., was given a 2.0 rating, placing him, according to TSN, among the top eight senior wide receivers in the nation.

4. Windlan Hall, (5-10, 172 according to TSN, 5-11, 175 according to the 49ers), an Arizona State defensive back, was given a 3.0 rating. Has 4.6 speed. Made a couple of All American teams.

5. Mike Green, 6-4, 220 pound offensive tackle from Georgia was not rated.

6. Jackie Walker, a 6-0, 220 pound (according to team roster; 200 according to SN; weighed in with 49ers at 186½) All-American linebacker from Tennessee was drafted as a defensive back by the 49ers, and, significantly, listed by TSN as a safety — and given a 2.0 rating, at that, which means, according to TSN ratings, the 49ers grabbed off two of the top five safety prospects in the country. With 4.6 speed, Walker is just an eyelash behind the small McGill.

7. Edgar Hardy, a guard from Jackson State, was given a 3.0 rating by TSN. The 49ers list him as 6-1, 235, TSN as 6-3, 240. It is hoped that TSN clocking of 5.1 isn't also an exaggeration.

So much for the 49ers. Following is what The Sporting News Ratings had to say about Raider draft picks:

1. Mike Siana (6-2, 195 according to Oakland, 6-3, 190 according to TSN), All American wide receiver from Villanova who caught 14 TD passes in his senior year, rated 2.5. What kept the sure-handed kid from 2.0 rating, said TSN was 4.7 speed — good but not in the super strata.

2-A. Kelvin Korver, Northwestern College (Iowa) defensive tackle is big (6-6½, 265) and has, according to the Raiders, excellent speed. His lack of experience, however, apparently kept him completely out of TSN ratings.

2-B. John Vella, USC All-American tackle (6-4, 253) who played against top-rated Patulski and Cal's Sherman White and held his own, was given a 2.0 rating, same as Antoine's. TSN noted his 5.1 speed, the fact that he has and can play both offense and defense, and that he seems to perform best in big games.

3. Mel Lunsford, Central State (Ohio) defensive end is 6-3, 250 according to Oakland, 6-3, 235 according to TSN. But he did single-handedly sack quarterbacks 104 times in his three year varsity career, has 5.0 speed, and was given a 3.0 rating.

4-A. Cliff Branch, 5-11, 170, Colorado wide receiver wasn't rated by TSN, but recently cracked the world's indoor 100 yard dash mark when he ran a 9.3 in the annual Astrodome USTFF track meet. That should get him some kind of a rating somewhere. Needless to say, he's also considered a dangerous kick returner.

4-B. Dave Dalby, UCLA All-American center and voted the team's most valuable player (6-2, 235 according to Raiders, 6-3, 233 according to TSN), has 5.1 speed and was considered by TSN as one of the top three centers among graduating seniors. But the rating was only 3.0, which means that TSN considered centers this past season to have been a mediocre lot. Rated along with Dalby were Tom DeLeone of Ohio State and John Hill of Lehigh. Lehigh? It must have been a poor batch.

6. (No fifth round pick) Dan Medlin, North Carolina defensive tackle (6-3, 260) not rated by TSN.

7-A. Ray Jamieson, Memphis State running back (6-1, 225) not rated.

7-B. Alonzo Thomas, USC defensive back (6-1, 200, according to Oakland, 6-2, 205 according to TSN) with 4.6 speed, was given a 2.5 rating and noted as a strong tackler and dangerous kick returner.

7-C. Dennis Pete, a 6-2, 180 pound defensive back from San Francisco State was not rated.

Final Tally: all of the top eight 49ers picks, six were rated four of them as virtual can't-misses to make the squad. Among the top 10 Raiders choices, only five were rated, just two, perhaps three, given any real chance of making the squad.

IF YOU WERE bored by the Winter Olympics and can't figure out why, it's probably because — except for the hockey competition — it's all man against clock, which isn't nearly so exciting as man-against-man.

We also don't like any sport where the winner is determined strictly by judges — such as in figure skating and free skating, or, for example, the high dive in swimming competition. This leaves the sport too open to personal predjudices, politics, skullduggery, or, perhaps, in the cases of women's sports being judged by male judges, a sports world Perfumo-type scandal.

49ers Do Well; Raiders Flub?

And, besides, form isn't everything. Suppose Mel Ott's hitting ability would have been judged solely by his batting form?

But how else could winners in such competition be judged, you ask? Well, in high diving, for instance, you could have all the competitors dive at once and declare the winner the first man to hit the water.

As far as we're concerned, the Winter Olympics could be excluded from the world's sports schedule, and no one would miss them, especially Karl Schranz. Don't be fooled by the large crowds at such esoteric events as the woman's luge. When something happens only every four years, and maybe only once in your lifetime, you go to almost anything where there are tickets available, just to say you were there.

LOCAL EVENTS: This Saturday, San Francisco State College is holding its first student organized CAPHER (California Association of Health-Physical Education-Recreation) Conference. Included among speakers and panel session leaders will be the controversial Jack Scott, Director of the Institute for the Study of Sport and Society.

For further information, contact Peter Pauley at the Student Activities Office, San Francisco State.

Terra Nova student athletes last week smashed the faculty, 46-38 in a donkey basketball game. And if you think we're going to make any remarks about the faculty cavorting with a lot of other asses, you're wrong.

Rams, SSF Due for Play-offs

Johnston capped it off with another.

Johnston and Tom Harper each ended with 19 but Ram center Leo Biederman, working well enough inside to foul out two Sharks, got game honors with 24. But the Rams committed 21 turnovers on other attempts and coupled with the cold shooting it was disastrous.

South City got away by the skin of its teeth as El Camino had four inside shots in the last five seconds of regulation play and couldn't score. Layins by Brad Lefler and Rhod Wallace in the extra period gave the visiting SSF quintet its eight conference victory.

Wallace made a fantastic steal and save, tumbling over the scorer's table with 2:25 left in the regulation game, passed around his back to Mason Larkin whose layin crept up and in the bucket forcing the OT. Each team had a turnover before Camino began a stall with 1:10 left. Bob Garcia, who had his best output of the year with 13, rimmed a shot with six seconds left but Camino got four offensive rebounds and came away dry on each.

Mark Spivey opened the overtime with two free throws but the SSF layins put the game away. Again the Colts had inside position at the buzzer and managed to put up three shots, all within five feet, but each rolled off.

Kenny Smith pleased the crowd and broke Terra Nova's back in Daly City last night scoring 31 points and stealing the ball in the third period for a fast break stuff. It earned him a technical foul and a standing ovation in his last home-court appearance.

The "T" didn't hurt as the Indians were up by 25 at the time as the Tigers didn't have a chance Wednesday against a fired-up Indian squad they had upset in the first meeting. The league's number two scorer, behind Smith, TN's John Racanelli, popped for 23 to lead the Tigers.

In a high-scoring affair Serramonte rallied to keep HMB winless with a tough second half defense and some good inside work from center Todd Stevenson. HMB's Pete P e t e r s o n cooled off after a torrid first half but still got game honors with 28 but aside from he and Ron Hunt, who managed 21, the Cougars didn't generate the offense needed.

DC Summer Aides Needed

Preliminary plans for the 1972 summer recreation program are under way by the Daly City Recreation Department.

Applications are being taken for the position of recreation specialist to conduct special interest classes for adults and children.

Instructors are being sought in the areas of flower arranging, baton, girls' judo, china p a i n t i n g, Oriental cooking, French cooking, ceramics, crocheting, knitting, and cake decorating.

Applicants must be 21 years of age, have private transportation, and have experience in an instructional setting.

Interested persons should contact Katherine Bradshaw (992-5356) for further information and application forms.

Leopards on Coast Triumph

The Linda Mar Lepards rolled to an impressive victory in the fourth week of action in the Parks and Recreation Department and Laguna Salada School District's 7th grade basketball league.

The big "Blue Machine" of Linda Mar kept right on rolling, as the Leopards made it win number "4" by demolishing San Andreas School, 39-8. The Leopards' offense was led by Darrell Fazzio with 11 points and teammates Mark Zarnoch and Dave Linney popped for 8 points apiece.

Tom Harris scored 13 points in l e a d i n g Pacific Heights School over Cabrillo 24-14. The victory moved Pacific Heights into second place.

Sharp Park School picked up victory number "2" by zipping past Fairmont, 25-20.

YWCA Swim Lessons Open

The San Mateo County YWCA is still accepting registrations for its swimming program which is open to men, women and children of all ages.

The class is offered in Pacifica at Surfside Manor Pool, which is indoors and heated.
